A Word to the Thoughtless.
The Great Bolivar.
Spain, China, Trouble.
Silver Too Cheap.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LET THOSE that torment themselves with foolish fears, and permit their fears to interfere with business and the return of prosperity, ask themselves these questions:

Have we not had depressions before? Did we not then think that the end of the world was coming? Did not men go about, shaking their heads, saying:

"Yes, but this is a different kind of depression. We never had anything like this."

THOSE THAT have been in business a reasonable length of time recall the head-shaking, moaning and groaning of 1907.

Haven't there been good times since 1907? Didn't business "pick up," to put it mildly, after 1907? Haven't we, since then, added hundreds of billions to the country's wealth?

And haven't we got everything now that we ever had?

COULD ANYTHING be more stupid than talk and action of a kind harmful to business, to banks and other institutions, upon which the prosperity of us all AND EVERY MAN'S EMPLOYMENT depend absolutely?

TWENTY-THREE YEARS ago, on October 26, 1907, when many were taking their money out of banks, making a bad condition worse, as some are doing now, there was published widely a useful statement headed, "A Word to the Thoughtless." It said:

"To the wise no word is necessary. Men of knowledge understand full well that the country was never more prosperous, and that a panic in the midst of such unexampled industrial and commercial activity as this nation has recently enjoyed, and still enjoys, is a grotesque absurdity.

"The reasoning of those persons who are now participating in runs upon perfectly solvent banking institutions is on a par with that of those citizens who think, because they merely pay rent, they need not have the same concern about the conduct of government as those who own property.

"The informed man knows that those who pay rent are as much taxpayers as those who own the houses in which they live. Their concern with government is equally as great as that of the property owners.

"Likewise, the man who draws money from a perfectly solvent bank, in such a time as this, instead of protecting himself, may be promoting his own undoing.

"Credit is the life of business. If banks fail, business will totter. If business is wrecked, employment will cease. And what will it profit a man if he get his small hoard from a bank at the price of his business or of his job?

THE STATEMENT was signed "William Randolph Hearst."

What was true then is true now. Those that allow themselves to become foolishly frightened when the country has lost nothing real, except its courage, hurt themselves and others.

Every intelligent person should know that what we call a dollar is used over and over again by many. The property of the United States is not in cash. There are a few dollars at most for each American. We do our business with checks and credit. Our real wealth is in land, mines, mills, factories.

In the whole of the United States there isn't enough money to pay the depositors in the savings banks alone if a lot of frightened fools started to draw it out, all at once.

HIGH-SPIRITED Americans in Wall Street, learning nothing from the past, are cowering like chickens, when they see a hawk near the clouds. And in this case, there is no hawk. The human chickens have squawked themselves into a state of fear. They emphasize their fears by selling stocks at prices far below those at which, later, they will buy them back. You can buy stocks, absolutely safe, that will continue paying dividends, at prices that yield 10 per cent on the investment. That cannot last long.

A GREAT MAN, of whom the world knows too little, died 100 years ago today. Our Southern neighbor, Bolivia, is named for Simon Bolivar, who was born in Venezuela in 1783 and died in 1830, after giving freedom from Spain to Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Panama, Peru and Bolivia.

Born a rich man, his father an owner of much land, and many slaves, Bolivar interested himself in human liberty, and fought for it, to his death.

He was a far-seeing statesman, and lawmakers today might learn from him. He foresaw the trend and the difficulties of democracy, and his last proclamation, as supreme head of Bolivia, was issued to the people on his death bed.

He went successfully through 200 bloody battles. That will interest those that care little about statesmanship.

IN THE WAY of real news, you read about more violent fighting in China, and more trouble in Spain.

Yesterday's news from Spain told of rebels executed. The rebels are supposed to have captured Valencia, and they have killed three generals. "Reds," a new feature of civilization, help to make matters worse in

Test Decision Voiding Dry Law

U. S. ORDERS HIGH COURT APPEAL

Federal Judge's Opinion Holding 18th Amendment Invalid Faces Battle

The U. S. government prepared today to "appeal immediately" to the United States Supreme Court the decision of Federal Judge William Clark in Newark yesterday declaring the Eighteenth Amendment invalid.

Prohibition officials in New Jersey continued to make dry raids today and, in the first liquor case to be heard following the decision, the senior judge of the Newark district announced he would not be bound by the Clark ruling.

Some legal authorities held, however, that any United States commissioner could refuse to issue search warrants and any United States attorney could refuse to prosecute in prohibition cases, pending a review of the decision by the United States Supreme Court.

No change of procedure was anticipated in Pittsburgh, at least immediately. U. S. Attorney Louis E. Graham declared he had not yet studied Judge Clark's opinion.

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The ruling yesterday of Judge William T. Clark, United States Circuit Court in Newark, N. J., that the Eighteenth Amendment was not properly adopted to the nation's Constitution and is invalid, will be appealed immediately to the United States Supreme Court.

William D. Mitchell, attorney general, conferred today with William Forman, federal attorney who prosecuted the case which prompted Judge Clark's decision, and instructed him to appeal the decision to the nation's highest tribunal.

Mitchell's instructions prevents the case from being carried first to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and thence to the high court, if the Appellate Court affirmed Judge Clark's verdict.

SEEK EARLY HEARING

It was announced the department will ask the Supreme Court "at the proper time" to set the case down for "early argument."

Officials of the Department of Justice expressed confidence that the decision would be overruled, and that the decision of the Supreme Court in 1929 that the Eighteenth Amendment is constitutional will continue to stand.

The complexion of the Supreme Court has been radically changed since the Eighteenth Amendment was first upheld. Only four members of the court which upheld the amendment by 5 to 4 decision are still on the bench. They are Justices Holmes, Vandeventer, McReynolds and Brandeis. The new members who will pass on the

Mr. Thompson, banker-coalman, today released from jail at Uniontown on a court order after four physicians testified that his health made his release imperative.

DRYS HERE PLAN NO CHANGES

Inquiry at the office of the United States attorney here disclosed that the opinion of Federal Judge William Clark, of Newark, N. J., will for the time being have no effect on local Federal Court cases.

Since the Federal Court of the Western Pennsylvania district has followed the decisions of the Circuit Court of Appeals in the Third district, and the Supreme Court, no change in procedure is expected here.

In the absence of any contrary ruling, United States Attorney Louis E. Graham said that the Four Physicians Testify Ex-Coal Baron's Health Menaced by 'Jail' Term

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 17.—Josiah V. Thompson, former banker and millionaire coal baron, was released from the warden's quarters of the Fayette County Jail at 2 o'clock this afternoon on a court order, after four Uniontown physicians testified that Thompson's health was such that his release was imperative.

Thompson was committed to tentative jail confinement on December 9, after a long fight to escape punishment for contempt of court for failing to make restitution to the Niccolis and Messmore estates, in which he was charged with mishandling $300,000.

The physicians said Thompson is suffering from diabetes and has a cataract on one eye.

Before his release the court ordered Thompson to assign all his personal property over to the National Bank of Fayette County for the benefit of the Messmore and Niccollis estates.

Lindsey Free As Manning Drops Case

By DAVID P. SENTNER

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The case against former Judge Ben Lindsey, arising out of a disturbance several Sundays ago in the Cathedral of St. John the divine, was dismissed this afternoon by Magistrate August Dryer when no one appeared to sign a complaint against the Denver champion of companionate marriage.

Magistrate Dryer had previously dismissed the original complaint against Lindsey, which he said was incorrectly drawn. He ordered a new complaint drawn up if anyone would sign it, but no one appeared.

Charles H. Tuttle, representing Bishop Manning, of the Episcopal diocese of New York, said the bishop did not wish to sign the new complaint. There was no one present from the cathedral at the hearing and the case was dropped.

Engagement Off, Fifi D'Orsay Says

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Another film actress, Fifi D'Orsay, who began her career in France, has returned to the eligible list. She announced last night upon her return here from New York that she no longer is engaged to marry Fred Berrens, master of ceremonies at a New York theater, explaining:

"We have been separated so long, and our careers are taking us in different directions."

Senate 'Relieved' Farmer of Farm, Now 'Helps' Idle

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

It relieved the farmers of everything. Including the farm.

There is a terrific senatorial debate about the proper technique to employ while dropping a plugged dime into a tin cup.

House of Representatives wants President Hoover to allocate the relief money.

Senators want to distribute the dough themselves. They've had more experience.

They can toss it around. Washington threw a dollar across the Potomac. That's retail merchandising compared with heaving a billion across the Atlantic.

It's a Republican family fight. If they want a distributor who

LEAGUE COURT SIDETRACKED FOR YEAR

Close Vote Decides Fate in Senate Committee; Can Come Up in Extra Session

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The question of American adherence to the League Court was buried in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today for another year.

By the close vote of 10 to 9 the committee decided against reporting the protocols to the Senate floor during the remainder of the seventy-first Congress, which expires by constitutional limitation on March 4.

Unless President Hoover is compelled to call a special session of the newly-elected seventy-second Congress, it thus will be impossible for the Senate to take up the controversy until December of 1931, when the seventy-second Congress convenes in regular session.

The motion to postpone action was made by Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania. Those who supported him were: Moses (Rep.), of New Hampshire; Capper (Rep.), of Kansas; Fess (Rep.), of Ohio; Goff (Rep.), of West Virginia; LaFollette (Rep.), of Wisconsin; Vandenburg (Rep.), of Michigan; Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana, and Shipstead (F.-L.), of Minnesota.

The nine who voted to report the court and let it take its chances with other legislation at this session were:

Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, chairman; Gillette (Rep.), of Massachusetts; Swanson (Dem.), of Michigan; Pittman (Dem.), of Nevada; Robinson (em.), of Arkansas; Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi; George (Dem.), of Georgia; Black (Dem.), of Alabama, and Wagner (Dem.), of New York.

Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, prevented what otherwise might have been a tie vote by remaining away from the meeting.

It was rather a mixed-up alignment, with friends and opponents of the court found on both sides of the question of postponement.

5,000 ATTACK CAROL PALACE

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—(INS.)—Two hundred persons were injured in Bucharest today when police clashed with a mob of 5,000 anti-Semitic students attempting to invade the royal palace to protest against King Carol's sympathy with Rumanian Jews. Eighty were arrested by police who blocked the streets leading to the palace before the students were dispersed.

One student and one policeman were reported seriously hurt.

The students paraded noisily through the main thoroughfare, announcing they would force Carol to grant them an audience. Thwarted in carrying out this intention by a strong cordon of police, they shouted "Down with Lupescu!" and attacked the police.

Shots cracked on both sides and a pitched battle developed. Diverted from their march on the palace, the demonstrators attempted to storm police headquarters and later invaded the Free Masonic Lodge, partly demolishing the interior.

Alfonso Emerges as Hero After Quelling Revolt By Own Leadership

MADRID, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—King Alfonso, Spain's 44-year-old monarch, himself directed the operations which resulted in what the government terms a crushing defeat of the revolutionary movement of the past week, it was learned today on good authority.

The Spanish ruler, who has been king since the day of his birth, last Monday insisted on personally leading the government troops into action against the insurgent Maj. Ramon Franco and his companions at Cuatro Vientos airdrome, and was restrained with difficulty by his advisers.

For the first time since revolution put Spain under martial law, King Alfonso came out of his palace today and drove in an open carriage to the Church of San Francisco for ceremonies commemorating the achievements of the South American patriot, Simon Bolivar.

SCORNS HEAVY GUARD

At his own order he was accompanied by only a skeleton guard, and he smiled broadly and waved his arm at the great crowds which cheered his passage through the streets. It was characteristic of his flair for ignoring danger to his person.

Spain's sportsman king continues to be the man of the hour. His famous smile is said not to be so much in evidence as usual but his nerve has never deserted him and he himself has held the helm throughout the turmoil of the past week.

Everything has been done in the name of Premier Berenguer, but it was learned that King Alfonso himself has sat in quiet direction of affairs, listening to and co-operating with Gen. Berenguer and members of the cabinet.

RADIO AUTOS, 60 'CYCLES, VOTED TO POLICE

32 Machines, 16 Equipped With Receiving Sets, to Be Used in Bandit War

Stirred by the recent crime and bank robbery epidemic which reached a peak with the $52,000 holdup of the Manchester Band and Trust company yesterday, City Council today voted budget funds for strengthening the police force and providing the most modern means of combatting outlawry.

These include:

Sixty new motorcycles and six new patrols.

The request for 50 additional patrolmen was still to be acted upon.

Sitting as the budget committee on 1931 appropriations, members of council for the first time in years granted virtually every proposal by police heads. Public Safety Director James M. Clark, Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh and Inspector of Detectives Frank R. Boyd, backed up their demand for equipment and men to curb crime.

SURVEY RADIO SITE

An engineer from New York will be here tomorrow to make a survey for the site of the radio broadcasting station. Suggested possible sites were the Mt. Washington police station, the roof of the City-County Building and Central Police Station.

Alarms sent out by the broadcasting stations would be picked up by automobiles carrying radio sets within a radius of probably 50 miles. Apprehension of criminals has been speeded materially in nearly 40 cities of the country by means of radio, a survey has revealed. In some instances bandits were nabbed within a minute after the perpetration of a crime.

Council was informed the six patrols will cost $3,000 each and the three score motorcycles will cost $60,000; the radio station,

ITALIAN PLANES OFF TO BRAZIL

CARTAGENA, Spain, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Twelve Italian seaplanes, on a flight from Orbetello, Italy, to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, arrived here at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

ORBETELLO, Italy, Dec. 17.—Flying in triangle formation and divided into four squadrons, the 12 powerful Italian military airplanes commanded by Gen. Italo Balbo, air minister, were cruising over the Mediterranean Sea toward Africa today, off on the first leg of their 6,500-mile flight to South America.

Gen. Balbo, in his Black Squadron, led the way from Lake Orbetello, with the Red, Green and White squadrons taking to the air after him at intervals of 20 seconds.

The planes swept over the lake in beautiful formation triangles, rising from the water like floating toys. An early morning crowd was on hand to wave farewell to the 48 men comprising the crews. The last plane rose from the lake shortly before 8 a. m. (2 a. m. Eastern Standard time).

Roosevelt, Hoover Meet, First Time Since War

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—(INS.)—Two men who may conceivably be rival candidates for the presidency in 1932 met here today under circumstances quite devoid of politics.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, led a delegation of fellow governors to the White House to pay respects to President Hoover, prior to holding a meeting of the governors' executive council.

It was the first time Gov. Roosevelt and Mr. Hoover had met since the old war days when both were serving in the Wilson administration, Roosevelt as assistant secretary of the navy, and Mr. Hoover as food administrator. Since that time their political paths have diverged—Mr. Hoover becoming Republican and dry, and Gov. Roosevelt Democratic and anti-dry. The Governor said:

"We had a very pleasant chat. While our visit was primarily to pay respects, we did discuss unemployment to some extent."

Ford Near Victim of Auto Crash in Youngstown

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Henry Ford, Detroit automobile manufacturer, escaped injury in an automobile collision which damaged the steering gear of the car in which he was riding through Youngstown last night.

Mr. Ford and his chauffeur and secretary proceeded on their trip from Washington to Detroit in a new car furnished by a Ford agency here, after a delay of an hour and a half.

The collision occurred on the main street at the public square, between Ford's car and one driven by W. N. Bare, of Youngstown, who asserted today that Ford's car "crashed" a red traffic light while Bare was crossing with the green light.

Mr. Ford's car was driven to a motor agency under its own power. There the motor magnate waited in the salesroom while a new car was prepared for him, and the party's baggage transferred.

No report of the accident was made to police, and the occurrence became publicly known only this morning.

RADIO AUTOS VOTED FOR POLICE

$18,000. The price of the new autos was not set.

The Commercial Casualty Company has offered $2,000 reward for arrest and conviction of the Manchester bank bandits.

It was learned that many banks in the Pittsburgh district have hired private detectives as guards. They will be placed at strategic points in the banks and will conduct private investigations in bank robberies.

Irritability is growing between the police and the detective bureau as a result of the bank robbery and holdup investigations.

City detectives took offense at the statement attributed to bank officials, made when police went to question witnesses of the holdup. They were told that private detectives would handle the case, the city sleuths said.

The Manchester bank robbery occurred shortly after the bank was opened yesterday, and swelled the amount of loot procured by bandits in the last six weeks to an amount in six figures.

Three gunmen threatened the Manchester bank employes with death, forced Dravo Grumken, assistant treasurer, to open the vault, and fled with their loot after herding G. C. Gerwig, 80-year-old bank president, and his employes into a rear corridor.

The stolen Packard in which the trio escaped has been recovered, but efforts of police to find any trace of the bandits have been futile.

Supt. Walsh has not made use of the automobiles offered him by District Attorney Andrew Park, who said the city is "woefully weak in its motor equipment," although he said he is grateful for Park's offer.

State police said they first learned of the bank robbery at 9:50 a. m., 20 minutes after it occurred, when they received a teletype flash.

FAULKNER'S DEFENSE

Police Inspector Charles Faulkner, of the North Side today replied to criticisms of the detectives for not keeping quiet the finding of $1,560 of the Perry State bank robbery in a rooming house at 532 Tripoli street, so that the robbers could have been trapped on their return. He said:

"I have had 24 years' police experience and it was as plain as day to me and my men that the four bandits had been scared out of the district and had no intention of returning to the Tripoli street house. When we arrived children were already saying: 'That is the house where the bandits stayed.' It was neighborhood gossip. The bandits left keys to the house, their pistols, ammunition and everything that might cause them to be detained if arrested in their flight. They had no intention of returning."

Coolidge Praises Bolivar, Hero of South America

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Dec. 17.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

Today, December 17, Colombia, Venezuela, Peru and Bolivia commemorates the one hundredth anniversary of the death of Simon Bolivar. Nearly 20,000,000 people in those four countries honor him for changing the course of their history.

Calvin Coolidge

In a few years, his military skill and leadership drove Spain from a territory two-thirds the area of the United States which she had held from the days of Columbus. He ranks as one of the great and true patriots.

Born in Venezuela, trained in Europe, he returned home to dedicate himself and his great possessions to the freedom of his countrymen. Having seen revolution in France and free government in the United States, he adapted them to his own country with the result that his efforts in the North, and those of San Martin in the South, finally made all Spanish South America independent.

To the action of a soldier he added the vision of a statesman. He founded government. Recognizing the unity of interests of the western hemisphere, he called the first Pan-American conference at Panama in 1825. His public service and unselfish character entitle him to be named as one of the great figures of the new world.

When he finished, Senator Bingham (Rep.), Connecticut, an opponent of the bill, replied:

"Notwithstanding the eloquent speech of the Senator from Pennsylvania, defending the bureau over which he presided for 10 years, I would like to point out the health of mothers and children improved at a greater rate in the states where it did not operate than in the states where it did."

Braddock firemen were assisted by departments from Rankin and East Pittsburgh. Damage estimated at more than $5,000 resulted from a series of fires in Pittsburgh.

An explosion and fire in the laundry department of the Armstrong Sanitary Wipers Company building, Ninth street, Braddock, resulted in a loss estimated at $35,000.

Two trucks and three pleasure cars were destroyed in a fire which swept the warehouse and garage of Victor Miele, in 510-12 Corey avenue, Braddock. Miele estimated his loss at $10,000.

KNOX RESIGNS HEARST POST

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(Universal.)—Col. Frank Knox, who has been identified with the executive management of the Hearst newspapers for the last three years, last night made the following statement:

"I have today tendered to Mr. Hearst my resignation as general manager of his newspapers. Mr. Hearst and I have reached a divergence of opinion as to methods of business management, and since our differences of view could not be reconciled, my withdrawal was the appropriate remedy for the situation."

Col. Knox first joined the Hearst organization as publisher of the Boston American, later becoming identified with the general management.

Col. Knox later made public this telegraphic reply from Mr. Hearst, dated San Simeon, Cal.:

"We have had a long and happy association and I greatly regret your resignation. If you leave the date of your resignation to me I am afraid I would not set it. So that matter must be left to your decision. Please accept sincere expression of my friendship and good wishes.

SENATE ORDERS RELIEF PLANS CHECKED UP

Inquiry Will Determine if Hoover's Program Meets Needs of Unemployed

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—In a desire to determine whether President Hoover's legislative relief program will meet unemployment problems this winter, the Senate this afternoon unanimously adopted a resolution directing its appropriations committee to interview all government authorities connected with relief operations.

The resolution, sponsored by Senator La Follette (Rep.), of Wisconsin, requested the calling of Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the President's emergency employment committee; John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross; Col. J. Clawson Roop, director of the budget; Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, and James A. Wetmore, acting supervising architect.

SEEKS INFORMATION

Senator Watson, Republican floor leader, said Congress was entitled to know the information gathered by the government authorities.

This action follows the determination of Senate leaders of both parties to learn for themselves whether the President's relief program is adequate.

The Senate started a debate over its previous action in stripping the President of power to interchange appropriations in the administration's $116,000,000 public works construction bill.

Senator Jones (Rep.), of Washington, asked the Senate to recede from its ban on the President's powers and its earlier vote compelling use of local labor and payment of local wage scales in all new projects. Jones reported that the House conferees had refused to accept either Senate provision.

This debate followed a brief fight over the Senate's previous action in passing a $30,000,000 appropriation for modernizing three battleships. Senators King (Dem.), of Utah, and Heflin (Dem.), of Alabama, held up the bill after it passed, protesting the money could better be used to relieve unemployment. Senator Swanson (Dem.), of Virginia, author of the bill, served notice then he would call up the measure for a finish fight tomorrow.

Meanwhile, a new relief measure was sponsored by Senator Nye (Rep.), of North Dakota, providing for an 18 months' extension on all farm loans made by the secretary of agriculture or the Federal Farm Land Banks since January 1, 1925. The bill would require the secretary of the Treasury to pay into the farm land banks a sum equal to the total of all such extended loans, in order to protect the banks.

DROUGHT BILL SLASHED

Accepting the challenge of the Senate, the House Agriculture Committee slashed the Senate's $60,000,000 drought relief bill to $30,000,000 and struck out a provision permitting use of the money for the purchase of food.

The committee's action followed the appearance of Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, who said a $25,000,000 seed and feed loan would meet the needs of the 24 drought-stricken states.

Hyde denied he had ever approved the $60,000,000 figure or that he approved including the word "food" in it, despite the declaration of Representative Aswell (Dem.), of Louisiana, that Hyde led him to believe he was for the bill.

Eighteenth Amendment Invalid, Judge Rules

Universal Service.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 17.—Judge William Clark, of the Federal Court of the District of New Jersey has ruled that the eighteenth Amendment is not, and never has been part of the Constitution.

He handed this decision down yesterday in the case of William Sprague, obscure farmer of Sussex, N. J., who was found last March with 50 half barrels of beer on his trucks, and who, through the efforts of a brilliant array of counsel, fought the law itself.

The nub of Judge Clark's decision lies in his contention that the such amendments as the Eighteenth, that transfer to the United States powers heretofore reserved to the separate states, can be ratified only by conventions of the people themselves in those states, and not by state legislatures.

ENFORCEMENT CONTINUES

In spite of the decision, federal prohibition authorities today continued to make dry raids today and in the first liquor case to come up since the decision, the senior judge of the district, William N. Runyon, refused to be bound by the Clark ruling.

John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator for Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, in a statement in Philadelphia said that unless contrary instructions came from Washington, he would consider the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act still valid in New Jersey.

United States Attorney Philip Forman at Trenton, who represented the government in the case, in which Clark made the decision, said the law would be enforced just as in the past. He said:

"The government will, of course, appeal the decision. Meanwhile, as I understand it, no other judge in the United States, or the judges of this district, are bound by this opinion, and therefore enforcement of the Volstead Act will continue in New Jersey until the remaining three judges of this bench all decide in agreement with Judge Clark or until a decision of the higher court is reached upon this opinion."

DECISION NOT BINDING

Judge Clark also said the decision was not binding on other judges in his district and explained they could make their decisions as to whether the amendment was valid. Judge Clark said:

"My decision will not affect the operation of prohibition laws in any way, or affect other amendments to the Constitution."

Cohalan, a former New York Supreme Court justice, said:

"The decision is so binding and controlling that in the state of New Jersey, either in any pending case or in any future case, the defense may be raised that there is no Eighteenth Amendment.

"So far as other states are concerned, the decision isn't binding, but is strongly persuasive."

Attorney Julius Henry Cohen, of New Jersey, who aided in the defense case, said:

"We think it is a real victory for constitutional government. It goes back to the matter of government of the people by the people themselves."

GOVERNOR DOUBTFUL

Gov. Morgan F. Larson, of New Jersey, said:

"I have the highest regard for Judge Clark, but I should not take his decision as settling the matter. I would not advise my friends to transport liquor."

Judge Clark based his decision on Article 5 of the United States Constitution, and not, as had the defense counsel, on the Tenth Amendment. This article concerns the method amending the Constitution and states in part that such amendments shall be valid "when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several states or by conventions in three-fourths thereof." He wrote:

"The traditional method of adopting amendments to the United States Constitution is challenged. Upon the outcome of the challenge depends the disposition of the case at bar. Even if this opinion meets with a cold reception in the Appelate Courts, we hope it will at least have the effect of focusing the country's thought upon the neglected method of considering constitutional amendments in convention.

"We have often wished for some statute akin to that of Mortmain, to remove the dead hand of tradition from the domain of ideas."

Judge Clark, 39, and heir to millions, served with the American Expeditionary Forces in the World War. He is the youngest member of the federal judiciary. In yesterday's decision, 15,000 words in length, he cited nearly 100 authorities to support his contention.

He commenced by asserting that the case he was called upon to decide never was before presented in court and that he was not bound by an earlier authority. He pointed out that in national prohibition cases before the Supreme Court the substance of the Eighteenth Amendment itself was not discussed.

Another question that has been considered, he said, was whether an amendment taking away the powers of the states and giving them to the federal government thus reduced the police powers of the states.

PASTOR SEES DISGRACE IN DIVORCE

Dr. Reisner Would Tighten Laws, 'Urges Struggle' to Make Marriage Success

The third of a series of interviews in an unusual discussion of the divorce problem is published below. It presents the views of the Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of Broadway Temple Methodist Episcopal church, New York City.

The question under discussion is whether divorce laws should be more liberal or more stringent. The series will be continued daily, presenting the views of outstanding advocates and opponents of liberal divorce.

By DR. CHRISTIAN F. R[illegible]SNER.

A group of Reno divorcees met the other day to have a dinner party. They were gay. It was in the nature of a celebration.

What for? What were they celebrating?

Didn't they know they were failures? Is that anything to be proud of?

That's my idea on this divorce question. Every time a man or a woman dashes into court and asks for a divorce he says:

"I have just made a big failure."

He's like a bankrupt. Did you ever know of a bankrupt who was proud of the fact that he hadn't been able to hold his own in the business world?

BLAMES IGNORANCE

Of course, a lot of these marriage failures have been brought about by ignorance. I notice that to an alarming degree among the college graduates. It is amazing how pitifully ignorant they are. Makes you wonder, really, what they could have learned—if anything—in college.

Dr. Reisner

They forget all their calculus, geometry, Latin, Greek, physics and the like and grab—that is the best word for it—grab at some crack-brained theorist who tries to legitimatize sex contact. They say it is nature. Fiddlesticks.

Why, if that kind of philosophy were true we ought to have divorce laws so free and easy that the cop on post could grant a decree. But it isn't true. And people who are honest know it isn't true.

WOULD TIGHTEN LAWS

Tighten up the divorce laws. I am not sure that I believe in a divorce law such as exists in New York state, for it is not at all comprehensive. I do not consider it an intelligent law. Certainly there is more than one good reason why an honest contract, honestly entered into, might be dissolved.

But tighten up the law so that the human race might have a chance to gain in mental strength from a legitimate struggle, a genuine struggle, to make a success out of what threatens to become a failure.

That is what I hope to see happen. Certainly there will be difficulties, adversities and setbacks in any contractual relationship. Make it necessary by law for the parties to that contract to buckle down to good hard work to put it across.

SEES BENEFITS BY EFFORT

Frequently — far more often than otherwise — they will find that in the fight they are both making to make good, they will reach a state of marriage that is finer, nobler, better than they ever conceived it.

Under great scrutiny and restriction divorce may be necessary. But when it is necessary and when it has been consummated, let there be the legitimate shame accompany it that goes with failure at any time and under any conditions.

Don't be proud of your divorce. Be ashamed of it.

Find Missing Theater Man Happy Among Indians

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 17.—(INS.)—The three-day search through Death Valley for Ralph Farnum, 40, New York theatrical agent, was discontinued today when it was learned Farnum had been located living with a tribe of Piute Indians in the valley.

The theatrical agent is reported to have told his would-be rescuers:

"My health has improved and I intend to stay here until I have fully recovered."

Searching parties afoot and on burros had conducted a search through Death Valley since Sunday when one of Farnum's pack animals wandered back to Death Valley Junction, the point from whence Farnum had left early last month. Airplanes were to have joined the hunt today had the New Yorker not been located.

The words of "Death Valley" Scotty, millionaire desert prospector, were recalled today with Farnum's discovery. He had said:

"When the searching party comes to the end of its quest, I expect Farnum will be found sitting in his pajamas photographing Indians or a strange cactus."

Two pilots, a radio operator and a mechanic manned each machine. Modern equipment is carried by all participating planes. The men on the hazardous cruise have been in special training for nearly a year. Among the aviators is Col. Umberto Maddalena, who was first to locate the red tent of Gen. Nobile in the Arctic icefields.

THREE-WEEK FLIGHT

The air fleet will spread its cruise to Rio De Janeiro in Brazil over three weeks, averaging 100 miles an hour for an estimated 65 total number of flying hours. The ships are two-pontoon Savoia-Marchetti monoplanes with tandem Fiat motors developing a total of 1,120 horsepower.

The object of the spectacular project, according to Italian military circles, is to test the value of military air squadrons for long-distance missions. The longest continuous single lap will come with the crossing of the South Atlantic from Bolama, Africa, to Port Natal, Brazil. This overwater jump of 1,860 miles will be made some time between January 3 and 5.

ROUTE FROM CARTAGENA

From Cartagena the planes will fly to Kunitra, Morocco, 437 miles away; then 1,000 miles more to Villa De Cisneros, Rio De Oro, and then to Bolama, Portuguese Guinea, some 938 miles.

After their South Atlantic hop, they will fly to Bahia and finally to Rio De Janeiro.

The Italian government has planned to station seven fast cruisers along the South Atlantic route in case of forced landings in the sea. Supply ships and repair planes will be kept handy until Bolama is reached.

The Gulf disturbance is now centered off the South Atlantic Coast, while the Northwestern disturbance is centered over Manitoba, and extends southwestward in the form of a narrow trough to the far Southwest. The eastern high is centered over the Middle Atlantic States, and covers most of the country east of the Mississippi. Another high is developing over the plateau sections. The precipitation was light, except over the South Atlantic States, where generous rains occurred. It is snowing in middle and Eastern Tennessee, Kentucky and eastward over Western North Carolina and Virginia. There are also scattered snows in the Rocky Mountain states. Temperature changes were slight, but the tendency is towards rising. Over the northeastern states the temperatures are considerably above the normal.

William Penn's Grant Papers Bring $1,900

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The original letters patent restoring the province of Pennsylvania to Penn in 1694, brought $1,900 at auction here yesterday. The patent was issued by a writ of privy seal by William and Mary of England at Westminster, and contains the portrait of William, the royal crest and other armorial designs. The seal is lacking.

MAJOR RECANTS IN TESTIMONY

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Maj. Charles A. Shepard testified on cross-examination today at his trial for the alleged poison murder of his wife that Mrs. Shepard had ceased to love him and that his purported statement to the contrary made to federal agents at Denver last spring was an "inaccuracy."

The prosecution, which charges Shepard poisoned Mrs. Zenana Shepard at Fort Riley, Kan., a year and a half ago so he might be free to marry Miss Grace Brandon, young stenographer of San Antonio, Tex., continued its efforts to show discrepancies between the statement and his testimony.

Shepard testified he realized at the time there were inaccuracies in the statement taken at Denver where he was arrested, but reiterated he considered the matter "none of the officers' business."

HORVATH GOES ON STAND TODAY

Michael Horvath, blinded by a bullet fired by himself, took the witness stand in his own defense today and testified the fatal shooting of his wife, August 17, was accidental. He is charged with murder.

Horvath, former East Pittsburgh policemen, testified he and his wife had been discussing their silver wedding anniversary. He had been ill and as he started upstairs with a revolver which he had taken from its accustomed place to clean, his foot slipped and the gun was discharged, the bullet striking his wife in the head. In his remorse he sought to end his own life, he said.

The couple was to have celebrated their silver wedding anniversary two days after the shooting.

Commonwealth witnesses produced an alleged statement by Horvath after the shooting, in which he said he shot his wife and then himself after she had upbraided him for not going to work.

Find Earth's Crust Shaking Since Last Sunday

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Beginning Sunday and reaching a climax late Tuesday, a mysterious shaking of the earth's crust has been recorded on the instruments of the Harvard seismographic station, the university announced today. The shaking continued today, but with less severity. The announcement said:

"The ground moved back and forth rythmically and constantly."

At the seismographic station it was explained the mysterious shakings probably would continue until tonight. The phenomena, the observers said, while recorded at various times in different places in the past, have usually been "not quite as severe as this."

POINCARE GAINS IN LIFE BATTLE

PARIS, Dec. 17.—(INS.)—Former President Raymond Poincare of France rested easily today, although his condition is still causing grave concern.

The 70-year-old statesman, who is suffering from uremia and paralysis, fell ill Saturday after protracted labors to alleviate France's political crisis.

BOARD ON BLUE LAWS AT ODDS

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—City Council's Blue Laws Committee disagreed at a meeting yesterday on the question of plans for a liberalized Sunday, now prohibited by a statute of 1794.

Councilman William W. Roper, chairman, declared for professional sports, movies and other amusements after 2 p. m. Councilman C. E. Blackburn declared he and Bernard Samuel and Frederick D. Garman were opposed to a "commercialized" Sabbath. Councilman Howard Smith, the fifth member, did not state his position.

The committee also heard an opinion on a local option proposal outlined in a letter from John H. Fertig, Harrisburg, acting chairman of the Legislature Reference Bureau.

Fertig wrote that the plan could not be compared with a proposal of local option on the liquor question. He suggested a repealer with a "rider" attached, providing for referendum in various districts.

Pittsburgh Driver Runs Into 3 Deer

FRANKLIN, Pa., Dec. 17.—An automobile driven by Frank Feresi, Pittsburgh, ran into three deer on the Rouseville-Titusville road. One deer was killed, and another suffered a broken leg and had to be killed. The third, apparently hurt, ran away. The car had a headlight broken, but the driver escaped injury.

REBELS BATTLE IN GUATEMALA

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Existence of a "critical" revolutionary situation in Guatemala was reported to the State Department today by the American Legation at Guatemala City.

Aside from reporting that sharp fighting had occurred on the streets, the legation's advices were indefinite. The obscurity of the actual status of the revolution was indicated by the legation's report saying that the army was divided, but that it was not known whether the revolt was against Provisional President Palma or another faction.

Minister Recinos said he received a message from his government last night which contained no indication trouble had arisen.

CITY MANAGER LAW URGED

Legislation to enable municipalities to operate under the city manager plan in Pennsylvania was outlined today before members of the Rotary Club of Pittsburgh in the Fort Pitt Hotel by Walter J. Mallard, field secretary of the National Municipal League, of Philadelphia.

Asserting most municipal governments are approaching a crisis, Mallard said an enabling act was necessary to establish the modern form of government and to put into effect legislation enacted in 1922. That act provided for home rule for cities and boroughs, but failed to give the power for such operation, he said.

Crediting Arthur V. Snell, managing director of the Allied Boards of Trade, as the father of the administrative basis for city managers, Mallard declared the proper form permitted a thoroughly representative council that should be small, but representative of the people. The council should operate as a board of directors and the mayor would be without power other than as a social representative, he said.

ALFONSO HERO AFTER REVOLT

and dropped leaflets proclaiming a republic, his majesty wanted to don a uniform and personally lead his troops into battle at Cuatro Vientos. He was dissuaded only after pleas of his advisers that he not endanger his life in this unnecessary manner.

Premier Berenguer, worn out with the days and nights of watchfulness in which a moment's laxity might have cost Alfonso his crown, has collapsed with a severe case of tonsilitis and is very ill, but his condition is not thought serious.

The premier, who has worked practically without sleep since the Jaca revolt last Friday, was compelled to take to his bed last night with a temperature of 102.5. His condition is greatly aggravated, his doctors say, by incessant smoking during the last few days.

REWARDS SENORITA

Premier Berenguer from his sick bed today ordered that the Senorita Anita Torrero, a telephone operator at Ayerbee, near Huesca, be sent a gold bracelet in recognition of her valor in maintaining her post against the enemy insurrectionists, continuing at her switchboard with which she kept in communication with the government during the battle which ended the Jaca uprising last Saturday.

Court-martial in the cases of those captured at Cuatro Vientos Monday are being held secretly in Madrid today, but in authoritative quarters the belief is expressed that there will not be any more executions. Those found guilty as rebels will be given prison sentences.

Niceto Alcala Zamora, whom the revolutionists proclaimed "President of the Republic," made a statement in prison today accepting responsibility for his part in the revolt and expressing a willingness to take the consequences whatever they may be. Igul Maura, another outstanding insurrectionist leader, made a similar statement.

COUP WELL PLANNED

The substance of their "confessions" was that Republican and Socialist and Labor leaders throughout Spain had been planning for months to overthrow the king and establish a republic. Their movement was thoroughly organized, they said, and the first outbreak was to have taken place by Monday morning. It was to have been accomplished without bloodshed, and there was to have been a general strike simultaneously in every Spanish city.

PINCHOT URGES HOME BUILDING

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16.—(AP.)—The depression in the building and real estate business is not due to over-production in most parts of Pennsylvania, but to lack of capital to continue operations, in the opinion of Gov.-elect Gifford Pinchot.

Resolutions were adopted by the Upper Darby Chamber of Commerce, Upper Darby Business Men's Association and the Delaware County Real Estate Board, asserting that employment could be increased, business stimulated and speculative evils controlled by the immediate encouragement of a moderate building program.

Pinchot said in reply:

"The home-building program which you advocate will afford the greatest amount of labor to both skilled and unskilled workmen, with the least possible investment of capital. It will produce a commodity in universal demand that may be marketed when normal business conditions return, with the least possible depreciation, and that possesses an earning power in the 'interim."

COUNTY SPLIT ON DAIX FIGHT

One of the major engagements of Gov.-elect Gifford Pinchot's war against Augustus F. Daix, Jr., president pro tempore of the State Senate, is being fought among local political leaders with the outcome in doubt, according to well-informed political seers and soothsayers.

That Pinchot does not have the assurance of solid support in the Daix fight from the six local senators and may have but two and at the most three of them, is the opinion of persons who know, if anybody does, what is going on in Allegheny County.

W. L. Mellon has returned to the city with the usual statement that he is too busy to be engaged in politics. Nevertheless, he is known to have conferred since his return with County Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong, Mayor Charles H. Kline and Senator James J. Coyne on the forthcoming battle over the presidency of the Senate.

Health Better, Vare Omits Florida Trip

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 17.—(INS.)—Much improved in health, William S. Vare, Philadelphia G. O. P. chieftain, has decided to spend Christmas here instead of in Florida, where he has gone in the past few years.

The announcement of the veteran politician's plans were made here last night by his daughter, Miss Beatrice Vare. She revealed her father visited his office yesterday.

Nick Upsets Precedent With Hoover Dinner

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—(INS.)—Another knot in Washington's tangled social skein was unraveled last night, and Speaker Nick Longworth and his wife, the former Alice Roosevelt, today were a notch higher in the scheme of affairs pertaining to who precedes who.

All of which leads up to the fact that President and Mrs. Hoover were entertained at dinner last night by Speaker and Mrs. Longworth.

In this alone there is no news, for Presidents have accepted invitations to dine from the Speaker as one of their 12 annual outside social functions.

There is news in that this year, for the first time, the Speaker entertained the President in advance of members of his cabinet. Heretofore it has been the strict custom for the President to dine first with the Vice President, then the Secretary of State, and, in order according to rank, each member of the cabinet.

It has been Nick Longworth's claim that, as the House specifically was created by the Constitution to represent all the people through their directly elected representatives, its presiding officer should follow, immediately, the President and the Vice President as third highest representative, by direct vote, of the nation.

2 ENTER PLEAS IN JURY CASE

The embracery case growing out of a suit against Mrs. Laura Faulkner, wife of Charles Faulkner, North Side police inspector, came to a sudden end in Criminal Court today, when two of the defendants pleaded no defense before Judge Elder W. Marshall.

Mrs. Faulkner was sued by William Leether, 71 Melrose avenue, who charged he had been injured when hit by an automobile driven by her. Selection of a jury was completed on May 5. When the case was to resume the next morning it was learned that a settlement had been reached over night.

One of the jurors, Mrs. Mary Weisbacher, 2014 Webster avenue, told the court that she had been approached by Joseph and Mary Hamowitz, 2010 Webster avenue, with a request that she "go light" in the Faulkner case.

Hamowitz and his wife were charged with embracery and they linked Frank Nathan, of Monitor street.

After Hamowitz and his wife pleaded no defense, Nathan was discharged for lack of evidence. Mr. and Mrs. Hamowitz will be sentenced January 9.

MRS. HITCHCOCK GIVEN ESTATE

A joint will, made by Halbert K. Hitchcock, plate glass engineer who died November 24, and his wife, Grace Miller Hitchcock, of 5710 Bartlett street, was filed for probate today.

The will provided that the $157,000 estate was to go to the one surviving, with provision for its distribution after deaths of both husband and wife.

Mrs. Hitchcock is a sister of Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, and was hostess to the Edisons and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford when they visited Pittsburgh December 3.

The will provides that after the death of Mrs. Hitchcock, one-half of the estate is to be placed in trust for Halbert K. Hitchcock, a nephew, and Grace Miller Hitchcock, a niece. Provision also was made for servants in the family in sums ranging from $100 to $1,000.

FIRE ROUTS TWO FAMILIES

Two families were forced into the streets today when fire damaged a three-story house at 817 Mellon street, occupied by the Samuel Zeilingers and the Isaac Rosenbergs. Damage was estimated by Battalion Chief Fred S. Beckett at $5,000.

Mrs. Zeilinger and her children, Rhoda and Murray, occupying the first floor, and Mrs. Rosenberg with her daughters, Anna, Millicent and Bernice, second and third floors, were cared for by neighbors as the flames, beginning near the roof, swept downward.

Frozen water plugs hindered fire fighting. Two alarms were sounded. The origin was reported undetermined.

War Vets Will Stage Boxing Show

A boxing show of six bouts will be held Friday night in Avalon Borough Hall for benefit of the Service Star Legion, an organization of mothers of soldiers who saw service in the World War. Burgess Grant Ritchie is sponsoring the show, assisted by war veterans of the district. Proceeds will go toward wiping out the debt resulting from erecting a memorial chimes clock on the borough building last year.

Why doesn't the Senate eliminate that squabble and establish a precedent by getting down to business?

Mr. Kellogg has received the Nobel peace prize for his efforts in postponing war.

War is war. And we don't mean your uncle.

It's a beautiful thought to think of the time when the lion shall lie down with the lamb.

But the lion always gets up first. And alone.

Now, we like the peace efforts of Commissioner Doran much better.

The commissioner is going to stop the terrible poisoning of alcohol with the substitution of a new aperitif called alcotate.

It is harmless. And effective. Then it can't be harmless.

It will not kill a human bink.

But it will make him wish it had.

It has a taste something like a judicious blending of spoiled eggs and garlic.

Isn't that a dainty dish to set before the queen?

If Commissioner Doran thinks that a liquid omelet of spoiled eggs and fatigued garlic is going to stop the boys he has his foot in the wrong stirrup.

Spoiled eggs and garlic is quite an improvement.

Have you tasted the stuff they have been cooking up lately?

But the commissioner thinks that exhausted eggs and sublime tincture of garlic is the perfect denaturant for holiday liquor.

He says it's absolutely harmless. But if you drink it, don't make any dates for after Christmas. You won't be there.

Nevertheless, we thank the commish for his effort in protecting the wild animal and bird life of the metropolitan districts.

He should get a Nobel prize for something. He is a humanitarian and loves his fellow man even when he has that good old garlicky breath.

MEN TOLD HOW TO PICK COLORS

Hints on how men should dress were given by Miss Grace D. Ely, art consultant of the bureau of retail training of the University of Pittsburgh, in an address before the merchants' council of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce yesterday. She said pale or sallow men should wear warm colors, such as red, orange or brown. If florid, tone the color down with bluish or greenish hues in clothing, she advised.

Miss Ely declared art in business pays. She said the wise merchant studies his client carefully and sells him goods that harmonize with his complexion. She recommended that merchants decorate their showrooms with colors that will attract and please feminine eyes, inasmuch as women frequently accompany their husbands to select clothing.

U. S. Puts 44,750 To Work at $6.50 a Day

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—(AP)—More than 40,000 persons out of work last week were busy today at $6.50 a day.

The Postoffice Department needed them to help with the Christmas mail. It has $7,200,000 to pay them.

Forty thousand are temporary clerks, carriers and laborers and 3,500 are sorting packages and letters on mail trains. The motor vehicle service hired 1,000 and 250 were added to the force of rural carriers.

REPLIES URGED IN SEAL SALE

Grant Curry, chairman of the Christmas Seal Committee of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh, today made another urgent appeal for replies to the many letters still unanswered in the sale of seals. More than 100,000 letters containing seals were sent to residents of the city and county and there are still half of the number unanswered.

Mr. Curry stated that delay in answering serves to add to the expense of the campaign and delays the league in formulating its budget for the coming year. The committee's request is that those still retaining unpaid-for seals mail the money for those they intend keeping along with the unwanted seals. Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, president of the Congress of Women's Clubs, will speak in behalf of the seal sale from radio station KDKA tomorrow afternoon at 2:45 o'clock.

BOARD OF TRADE HEADS NAMED

The Chartiers Board of Trade last night elected John McCartney president; E. A. Putnam, vice president; William B. Samuels, secretary-treasurer, and Harry Barlow, H. F. McKibben, E. W. Sutton, J. W. Snyder and L. B. Morgan, directors.

The organization indorsed construction of the bridge across the Monongahela River at the foot of Liberty avenue and the connecting tunnel under Mt. Washington. The southern terminus of the tubes, as indorsed by the board, would be at McGanna corner.

Two Fires Blamed Upon Incendiary

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Dec. 17.—Authorities investigating two fires at Graysville, which entailed loss estimated at $1,200, suspect an incendiary is operating in that section. The fires, occurring within three days, were the only ones experienced there in more than a decade.

FAIL TO PRESS BUS PERMIT

The petition of John D. Woollett, Jr., trading as the Woollett Trucking Company, asking permission to operate a freight and trucking service throughout Pennsylvania, with Pittsburgh as the terminus, failed of action yesterday when he did not appear here before Examiner William Bool, of the Public Service Commission.

Three others who had asked for permission to operate common carriers also failed to appear at the hearings.

They were: Phillip Talavinia, who sought permission to operate a bus line between Versailles and Kelly Farm, in Elizabeth Township, Allegheny County; Joseph Mnarci, who wanted to run a freight carrier between Pittsburgh and Clinton, and Frank Odrechowski, who sought a permit to pick up passengers on "call or demand" in Ford City and vicinity.

Aged Merchant Dies in Hospital

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 17.—J. M. Peacock, 73, prominent merchant, of Marianna, died in the hospital here. He had been engaged in a general merchandise business at Venice, Canonsburg, Washington and Marianna.

Five Men Arrested In Lottery Raid

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 17.—Raiding an alleged lottery headquarters in West Brownsville, Washington County detectives arrested five men, seized $400 in money, an adding machine and other equipment.

William Long, Donald Crawford, J. D. Pringle, Edgar Florence and William Hilton posted bonds of $500 each for appearance in court.

PLAN ENABLES IDLE FUNDS TO EARN RETURN

Money Awaiting Investment Should Be in Certificates Of Deposit.

IS READILY AVAILABLE

Interest Is Paid Yet Money Is Negotiable.

As a result of liquidations forced by the fall in prices of securities, many individual funds, large and small, are being held in what might be termed a state of "suspended animation" pending developments. To those whose funds are temporarily idle The Colonial Trust Company recommends the Certificate of Deposit.

Because its use is extremely simple, its benefits are often overlooked. The individual who may have sold certain securities worth, say $500 or $1,000, and who hesitates to tie up his capital for fear it may not be instantly available later on when some opportunity for profitable investment appears, can use the Certificate of Deposit with ideal results.

All he needs to do is to purchase from The Colonial Trust Company a Certificate of Deposit for the amount of funds available. The Certificate may specify payment in 30, 60 or 90 days, or even six months if the money will not be needed before that time. On deposits of six months or over, interest at 4% is paid from the date of deposit; on lesser periods the rate is slightly lower, but it offers the advantage that interest starts at once.

The Certificate itself is a negotiable instrument and can be used in a number of ways if needed. Besides being transferable by endorsement, it can be used for credit when one happens to be in a distant city.

Very often, when funds are temporarily idle, eating their heads off like idle horses, it is because their owner doesn't realize that they can be put to work and still be readily available.

The Certificate of Deposit serves a splendid purpose, keeping the funds in liquid state for ready investment, yet enabling the money to "earn its keep."

If you would like to know more about this plan, drop in at The Colonial Trust Company today and ask to have it explained.

CONGRESS SAYS NO $2.50 GOLD

Old Christmas Standby Outlawed by Government Treasury.

Each Christmas the giving of gold pieces has been one of the holiday's bright features. One of the most popular gold coins has been the $2.50 piece, but last year only a few were available, and this year probably none can be obtained.

Last April Congress directed the Treasury to cease coining and issuing them, and their gradual withdrawal from circulation has followed. None are now issued to the banks of the country.

But the gold $5 and $10 and $20 coins are, of course, still in circulation.

$6,000,000 From the Christmas Savings Clubs Is Making Christmas Merrier and Shopping Easier in Pittsburgh

The upper two photographs show scenes in The Colonial Trust Company when the Christmas Savings checks were being cashed. The lower photographs show some of the happy shopping scenes in Pittsburgh stores which this Christmas Club money is making possible.

Mr. R. D. Wetherell, manager of the Savings Department at The Colonial, in a recent radio talk at KDKA pointed out that the Christmas Club money is now contributing to the prosperity of this community, increasing employment, and adding to the confidence of industry.

DO YOU FOLD THE NEW BILLS TWICE?

Plan for Increasing Life Of Paper Fails to Work.

When the Government began the printing of the new small-size currency, one reason for adopting the size was to get bills small enough so that people would fold them only once when putting them in purses and pockets. Experts said that if this could be done the wear on the paper money could be reduced 40 per cent, which would be a big item of economy.

But after a year and a half of experience, the Government has sadly come to the conclusion that people are going to keep on folding the money twice, just as usual.

The average life of the old bills was nine months for the $1 paper and 11 to 12 months for the $5 ones. The average life of the new ones is now only a few days longer than that.

COLONIAL PAYS DIVIDENDS

The Board of Directors of The Colonial Trust Company yesterday (December 15) declared a quarterly dividend of 3% ($3.00) per share on the capital stock of the company, payable January 2, 1931, to stockholders of record at the close of business, December 26, 1930, and a special Christmas dividend of 2% ($2.00) per share on the capital stock of the company, payable December 20 to stockholders of record at the close of business, December 17. In addition to the above dividends the directors have paid to the employes a Christmas Bonus of one month's salary.

RADIO PROGRAMS FROM COLONIAL

Tune in on The Colonial Tellers and their String Choir, at 7:15 p.m., every Friday, over KDKA. It's a good musical program and the only String choir on the air.

For women The Colonial presents a program at 11:45 every Monday morning, presented by Miss Ella Graubert, Pittsburgh attorney.

Christmas Clubs Easier Under Colonial's Plan

Employes Can Join Club as A Group.

The Christmas Savings Club has become much more convenient in many offices and shops, because of a plan worked out by The Colonial Trust Company for group savings clubs.

Ten or more persons in one office go together to create a Christmas savings account at The Colonial. One individual makes the deposits, collects the funds. The Colonial sends a representative to the office to start the funds and leave the necessary books.

For that matter, two or three persons can form such a club in their own office by authorizing one of them to open the accounts at one time and see that the regular deposits are made.

In this way all the inconvenience is stripped from savings, considerable fun is added, and the zest at the end of the year when funds are available for Christmas buying is all the greater.

Why not try it? Call Court 1080 and ask that a representative of The Colonial call and complete the details.

Accounts can be started for weekly payments of 25 cents, 50 cents, $1, $2, $3, $4, $5, $10, $20 or $50. Four per cent interest is added if all deposits are made promptly.

1930 DIVIDENDS MAY EXCEED 1929

At the end of November, the dividends which had been paid to investors during this year was 12 per cent higher than at the same period in 1929.

Total dividends paid to the stockholders of the corporations in America in 1929 were $4,488,000,000, according to the figures compiled by the New York Times. Dividends in 1930 have already reached $4,414,000,000 and the advance estimate of December dividend payments would send this year's total over the 1929 figures.

Adverse Ruling on 18th Amendment Stirs Entire Nation

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The decision of Federal Judge William Clark yesterday in Newark, N. J., that the Eighteenth Amendment was invalid was the subject of nation-wide discussion today.

The action of Judge Clark in discarding the arguments made by the New York lawyers who brought the new test of the amendment's validity confused some of the Congressional lawyers who had followed the case closely.

Representative George S. Graham (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, and widely known lawyer, had fully agreed with the contention made by the lawyers fighting the amendment, but did not agree to the basis of Judge Clark's decision as reported in dispatches. He said:

"If the decision is on the ground that Legislatures could not ratify the amendment involving a transfer of powers of the state to the national government, I think it is wrong."

Graham contends that under the bill of rights and Article 5 of the Constitution, amendments transferring state powers can be ratified by state legislatures, but amendments taking away rights of the people should be ratified by the people through constitutional conventions.

PREDICTS FURTHER TEST

Representative James M. Beck (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, a noted constitutional lawyer, expressed belief that the case would reach the Supreme Court, but declined to pass on the merits of Judge Clark's decision. He said:

"It is to be regretted that the Supreme Court did not consider this point when it passed on the prohibition cases in 1920. It is not easy for the court at this late day to consider this point, but the court did consider a point involved in the Dred Scott case 20 years after that decision was handed down."

Attorney General Mitchell, Prohibition Commissioner Woodcock, Assistant Attorney General Youngquist, in charge of prohibition prosecutions, and many others in executive or quasi-judicial positions refused to comment on Judge Clark's decision in any way.

DRYS SCORN RULING

Not so members of Congress, however. The drys generally were scornful of his logic and unanimous in their prediction that it will never stand the test of the Supreme Court.

Indicative of the vast confusion existing in the minds of some of the Senate's best-known lawyers was their comment.

"Judge Clark has raised an aspect of the question that has never been passed on directly and finally by the Supreme Court. I hope this query on (the method of ratification) as well as many others involving the constitutionality of the Eighteenth Amendment will now be passed on by the court so as to remove any further uncertainty."

GOFF DISSENTS

Differing with Walsh was Senator Goff (Rep.), of West Virginia, who, as an assistant attorney general, participated in 1920 in the argument before the Supreme Court, which resulted in the upholding of the amendment and the Volstead law. Goff said:

"There is no ground for the decision. The court held in 1920 that the amendment was properly ratified."

Senator Morris Sheppard (Dem.), of Texas, author of the amendment, was inclined to be indignant over the whole affair, saying:

"Judge Clark is in utter and complete error. His decision will never be confirmed by the Supreme Court. The legislative method followed in the ratification of the Eighteenth Amendment is the same as that in other amendments, notably those providing for woman suffrage and the direct election of senator."

Senator Jones (Rep.), of Washington, author of the five-and-ten law, agreed with Sheppard.

The opponents of prohibition were jubilant over the decision, even though none too sanguine that anything would come of it.

URGES NEW JERSEY REPEAL

Representative La Guardia (Rep.), of New York, one of the leaders of the House wet bloc, said:

"New Jersey should now repeal its state prohibition law, so that there can be no prohibition enforcement at all in Judge Clark's district, pending final decision by the Supreme Court. The case undoubtedly will be appealed by the government, but meantime, there can be no enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment in that jurisdiction.

"Judge Clark's decision is a sound opinion. I have insisted that the Eighteenth Amendment was never properly ratified, though I took different grounds than Judge Clark.

SEES 2 ACTIONS NEEDED

"I contend that the amendment itself provided a new form of ratification, under which three-fourths of the State Legislatures had to approve the resolution to again submit it to the states for modification. In other words, two actions by the State Legislatures were necessary to put the amendment in the Constitution.

"As a result of Judge Clark's opinion, I believe the administration at Washington should take notice and bring forth sane recommendations for restoring true temperance and not continue the impossible, and now unconstitutional, attempt at absolute prohibition."

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 17.—(INS.)—Declaring that the United States Supreme Court has upheld the constitutionality of the Eighteenth Amendment on other occasions, Andrew Volstead, author of the Volstead enforcement act, today commented briefly upon the ruling of Judge William Clark at Newark, N. J. He said:

"The United States Supreme Court has been called upon before to rule upon the validity of the Eighteenth Amendment, and each time the court has ruled the amendment valid."

Dry Law Ruling to Bring No Changes Here

procedure here will continue as heretofore.

When asked what effect the ruling might have on the courts of the Third District, its senior jurist, Judge Joseph Buffington, said today:

"You, of course, recognize the propriety of my unbroken rule, namely, not to discuss in advance of trial or hearing any legal question that may ultimately come before me."

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, when asked today for an opinion on Judge Clark's position, said he was not in a position to comment on it, but that if a similar case came before him, he naturally would have to give an opinion.

KNOX SILENT

Roger Knox, United States Commissioner for this federal district, said today he is guided by decisions of the U. S. District Court of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in all procedure under the prohibition laws. He had no comment on Judge Clark's opinion.

Attorney Edmund W. Arthur, United States Commissioner, who sometimes serves in place of Commissioner Roger Knox, today said he had no comment to make on Judge Clark's decision, other than that his action in liquor prosecutions would be in accordance with rulings and decisions of the United States District Court here and the Circuit Court of this district.

Attorney J. Frank McAllister, who on December 9 questioned the constitutionality of the national prohibition act in a motion for arrest of judgment, after Adolph Morvi, of Chislett street, was convicted on a liquor charge, has filed a brief with the local Federal Court in support of his contention.

CHALLENGES LAW

The brief sets forth that the Eighteenth Amendment never was legally adopted as part of the constitution, not having been ratified by a sufficient number of state legislatures or conventions legally qualified to represent the states in such matters.

It is contended that any legislatures elected during a state of war between Germany and the United States, especially during the time that citizens and electors of states were in service in the armed forces of the United States under the national selective draft act, were not legally qualified to represent their respective states in ratification of the proposed amendment, known as the Eighteenth Amendment, for the reason that the electorate which chose members of such legislatures were materially mutilated.

Grimm's Wife Asks Pardon for Father

HARRISBURG, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—A letter from Mrs. Charles Grimm, wife of the National League first baseman, was among a number presented to the Board of Pardons today urging clemency for Charles Lyle, of Leechburg, her father, who is serving 19½ to 20 years for the killing of his wife. Relatives of the victim oppose the plea for clemency. Ira Hurwick, Pittsburgh attorney, pleaded for the release of Lyle.

Car Driver Cleared In Traffic Death

Mark B. Epstein, of 3306 Niagara street, was exonerated by a coroner's jury today in the death of Michael Krupinsky, 60, of 1127 Progress street, who was struck by Epstein's automobile at Eleventh street and Liberty avenue, December 5.

Wickersham Group Ending Dry Study

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The Law Enforcement Commission now is expected at the White House to report its conclusions on prohibition, to President Hoover in two or three weeks.

India and China, with one-half the population of the earth, depend on silver for their buying power. And the buying power of one-half the world's population makes a big difference to the other half.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA and Hungary are fighting a trade war, building up tariff walls against each other, a bad thing for the economic condition of Central Europe.

FRANCE HAS banking troubles and deals with doubtful bankers in a drastic fashion. Thirty-five French bankers are in jail, and 185 under government investigation.

GERMANY HAS found a way to make danger signals plain even for the color blind. Drivers approaching a railroad track need not know the difference between white and red. The warning comes in flashes. While the way is clear, a white light flashes forty times a minute. When a train approaches, a red light is turned on and flashes eighty times to the minute.

NEWS ABOUT GOTHAM AND HOLLYWOOD; LOCAL AMUSEMENT NOTES

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 17.

Headed by Douglas Fairbanks, they gather at the United Artists Studio, choose sides and play as enthusiastically as kids on a vacant lot.

For the purpose of injecting a little excitement in the game, they invite members of the University of Southern California team to join in the festivities.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

Some of the football minded are Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Johnny Mack Brown (one-time quarterback of the Alabama team), Charley Farrell, Russell Gleason, Quinn (Big Boy) Williams, Billy Bakewell and Doug. Sr.'s trainer, Chuck Lewis, who played for Missouri and Cornell and was, I believe, an all-American.

The film stars' brand of football is, of course, not as hard on the anatomy as the real thing. On forward passes and end runs, the ball carrier is tagged instead of tackled. If the play goes through the line, however, he is hit in regulation style.

So far, the casualties have been limited to Billy Bakewell's twisted knee.

MURNAU'S ACTIVITIES

Music and sound effects are being added to F. W. Murnau's South Sea picture, "Taboo," at the Tec-Art studio in Hollywood. According to his friends, Mr. Murnau still is undecided about a release of the film. Inasmuch as Europe now is demanding talkies as avidly as we are over here, the German director's silent picture may be faced with a limited audience.

Murnau's leading woman in "Taboo" is half-French and half-Tahitian. She is well spoken of by those who have seen the film.

LLOYD'S PLANS

Harold Lloyd

The comedian was reluctant to abandon the proposed football picture, but ultimately decided against it because of possible association with "The Freshman."

Despite dissimilarities, Harold's latest film, "Feet First," has been compared to "Safety Last," one of his early hits, which also had a skyscraper sequence. In view of the pronounced coolness of the public to re-makes, Harold is anxious that this shouldn't happen again.

IN RACING FILM

Casting about for a suitable leading man for its racing story, "The Up and Up," Universal hit upon Robert Armstrong.

Pathe being agreeable, Mr. Armstrong will start work presently under Ernest Laemmle, one of the U.'s hereditary directors.

In the meanwhile, Tom Reed and Fred Niblo, Jr., are doing the adaptation of the story.

I NOTE THAT—

Dorothy Lee had to knock off work Friday on account of the flu . . . Larry Ken is having a new boat constructed. This young actor has a private income, so he isn't worrying about the wolf at the microphone . . . Dick Arlen is back at the Paramount studio after the unpleasant experience of having a blank cartridge singe his face . . . Carmelita Geraghty, actress-daughter of Writer Tom, is to play in G. B. Shaw's "The Dark Lady," on the Writers' Club new program.

Loot

There are no days I do not think of you,
  And wonder where you are and how you fare;
And if the lads who followed me were true—
  Or, like a certain lad, were unaware
That there is magic in your ev'ry way,
  Too rare a thing to lightly cast aside;
I only wish that I had yesterday
  To live again—but since that is denied—

Please know that you are ever in my mind,
  All music is your voice—all blue your eyes;
Your whispers are in ev'ry vagrant wind,
  Your love in each fair flower that blooms and dies;

And always I will walk a bit apart—
—Kid Kazanova

Not New, But Clean

They had been hugging the various speakeasy bars in the Furious Forties all night and were plenty saturated with giggleoo. That is, two of the trio were pleasantly plastered, the third was practically dead. They decided to call it a night, and proceeded outside to their machine.

"Whash 'll we do with Joe?" asked one of them. "If we put him in the rumble seat and we hit a bump—he's liable to bounce out."

There was a lull in the conversation while they picked Joe up from the pavement.

"Oh, I know," exclaimed the other between hiccups. "We'll sit in the back and let Joe drive."

A Form of Criticism

George Beatty says we have probably heard of people going around with one lung, but that he knows of a dramatic critic who has only one tonsil. He went to have them extracted and left when it was half over.

Just for the Records

Mr. Arthur John, an amusement critic for the Washington Herald, reviewed the Vitaphone short christened, "The Bard of Broadway," and reported in part:

"Winchell gives all the impression of being a really nice fellow."

But I'm not.

Strategy

"Shipwreck" Kelly, Broadway's current pain-in-the-neck, who, they say, gets $100 daily to sit on a flag-pole, was snubbed by a Southern editor last year. Kelly offered his services to the newspaper.

"Not interested," snapped the blue-penciler, who added: "And what's more, you won't get a line in this sheet unless you fall and break your neck!"

"Shipwreck," however, sold himself to a hotel. Two days later the hotel considered Kelly's flag-pole sitting a waste of coin. But how to get him down? Every day he remained up there it cost the hotel another "yard." After a week and $700 had been wasted, someone finally hit on the idea.

They refused to send up food.

Pun-Employment

Maybe we shouldn't have brought up the subject. At any rate, M. White wants to toy with the name of George Jessel in a sentence like this:

"Will you let me have a ten spot George Jessel tomorrow."

A. Bromley's system is more difficult. He offers:

Mr. Bromley can also make up a sentence containing the word "noodle" in this manner:

"Things I Never Noodle Now!"

Gag

Take it from Danny Disman. Two cloak and suiters were discussing a pal who had made quite a success of his business in the last two years.

"You say," said one of them, "that you knew Jake before he was in the clothing business?"

"I knew him," said the other, "when he deedn't had a roof to burn over hizz had."

Always Belittlin'

"A columnist friend of mine, who lost his job, was almost starving. He refused, however, to sell apples on street corners because there was no space on the box for his name."

Tee, Hee

Last Tuesday's N. Y. Evening Sun reported, among other things, that an 18-year-old lad found a lady's $2,000 diamond and platinum watch. He was a poor boy, it appears, but he was honest. He turned the watch over to the police. His name is Louis Catalli, and he found the costly thing on Madison avenue.

The Sun explained in later editions that the owner couldn't be located.

In the same editions, in the Lost and Found columns, there was this advertisement:

"$100 reward for lady's platinum and diamond watch; lost on Madison avenue. Return to Herbert J. Payne, 15 William street. Phone Hanover 0630."

Ripley It or Not

There are numerous legends connected with Al Capone but, legend or not, this is amusing. Capone recently engaged a press agent.

"I don't want you to get me any publicity," he said. "I want you to keep my name out of the papers."

The exploiter suggested that the Capones invite every newspaperman and photographer in town to a party at the Capone estate on Palm Island.

The party was thrown and the party at the house included Mr. and Mrs. Capone and about 40 typewriter destroyers and hocus-pocus men.

The next morning Mrs. Capone complained to her husband that a $75,000 diamond necklace was missing.

Discover Original Washington Letter

NEWPORT, R. I., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—W. Norman Sayer, newly elected city clerk, inspected the recesses of the city hall vault and found an original letter from George Washington. None of the present occupants of City Hall was aware of its existence.

The letter was addressed to "The Freemen of the Town of Newport," and bore the date, August 19, 1790. It thanked the people of Newport for their hospitality on the occasion of his first official visit as President. Historical records show that Washington was in Newport on August 17, 1790.

SPANISH COUNTESS, AUTHOR ON RADIO BILL

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

Countess Olga Albani, charming Spanish aristocrat of NBC, sings over WCAE at 8:30 tonight in a concert which also features the Intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana." When the Countess was in Pittsburgh not so long ago she impressed us as a reserved and independent person, much as we had pictured her over the air.

Almost a coincident that on the same evening KDKA should take us for a tour of Spain at 10:30.

The Fast Freight, WJAS at 9, pulls up at Cleveland.

"Beautiful Blue Danube"—quiet on the air for several weeks now—comes back as an Olive Palmer solo, WCAE at 9:30, along with Rachmaninoff's "In the Silence of the Night." We cannot overlook the orchestra's selection of "March of the Sirdar."

If you've read dog stories by Albert Payson Terhune, no doubt you will be interested in what he has to say on WCAE at 10:30 in answer to Grantland Rice's questions.

* * *

RE-MIND-ER

Alynne, the mentalist, was inspecting KQV studios last night preparatory to his first broadcast tomorrow morning at 9:30.

"Now this microphone . . . ." began Paul Miller, and Alynne chimed in, "Doesn't work. I know."

As fast as Paul started to explain things, Alynne broke in with the balance of the sentence until Paul became a little irritated.

"Say, is there anything you don't know?" asked Paul.

"Yes," answered Alynne, "What are you going to buy me for Christmas?"

* * *

WARNING

Mrs. Charles M. Bregg, club editor, checks radio announcers even to the commas and wants to bet us that 75 per cent of the adjective men will say "God Rest You, Merry Gentlemen" in place of "God Rest You Merry, Gentlemen." The bet's on and we stake our reputation on Pittsburgh announcers.

* * *

Speaking of Christmas carols, may we remind you that the chorus of 100 sings Yuletide greetings over WJAS tomorrow morning at 9 and every morning thereafter for six days, except Sunday?

* * *

A special organ with 250 pipes has been installed. W. A. MacDonald is to direct the chorus.

* * *

* * *

"BY THE WAY—"

Helen Bell Rush Davis of the old days at KDKA, sang in the Salute Chorus last night. . . . she is visiting here for a few days. . . . A moth's nest was found in a radio being dismantled in an electric shop at 7139 Kelly street, Homewood, yesterday. . . . Lola Lane, college girl who made the movies via Ziegfeld Follies, entertains for WABC listeners at 11:30 tonight. . . . In his first Relief Fund broadcast at WJAS, Father Cox received several checks for $50 . . . the idea is to contribute so much for your favorite song to be put on the air. . . . Clap hands! The girls have included mistletoe in the decoration scheme for KDKA's personnel party to be held next Monday night. . . . They've asked us to give an explanation of the myth, but not a demonstration. . . . They're off to flying colors in the WJZ-WBAL and WEAF-WTIC synchronization tests. . . . Charley Horn expects to operate within a few months, he wired us yesterday after the Radio Commission granted him permission to go ahead . . . it means that WJZ at New York and WBAL at Baltimore will send the same programs on the same wavelength of 760 kilocycles; likewise WEAF at New York and WTIC at Hartford on 660 kilocycles.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Famous people invariably come from small towns. Don Bestor, radio's popular dance maestro, was born in Mazo Manie, Wisconsin, a town of 1,000 inhabitants. Mazo Manie is Indian for "green grass."

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Radio on the railroads has not yet reached that state of perfection which calls for any prolonged shout of "the public be pleased" in the block towers.

Several of the larger railroad systems have established radio sets in their more luxurious limiteds. Passengers in club cars and observation lounges, gazing at contented cows and discontented farmers, can hear programs all day long and far, far into the night save on those occasions when lightning is playing heavily about them. But I have yet to hear that the listeners, as a class, are genuinely satisfied.

* * *

The difficulty, of course, is that one type of program must please different types of persons. The majority of passengers do not feel that the privilege of selection, of turning the dial, is open to them. They are reluctant to encroach upon what seems to be the right of the more aggressive traveling salesmen among them. And so they endure what comes from the loudspeaker, suppressing, as best they can, the impulse to kick the thing out the window.

* * *

One Man's Beethoven Is Another's Boredom

What is one man's Beethoven is another's boredom, and those who would tap a feet to "Go Home and Tell Your Mother" are compelled to listen to the latest bulletin on the low pressure area over the Great Lakes. No happy medium is struck except in those rare moments when the music of Victor Herbert is aired.

* * *

The ideal arrangement for radio on the railroads has been made in France. There passengers are equipped with head sets with dials on the backs of the seats in front of them. They can turn Tschaikowsky on or off to their hearts' content. Such a system should be put into effect here. It would be welcomed—welcomed even to the accompaniment, if necessary, of a quarter in a slot.

* * *

Comes a note from Jack Mahoney, melody man, regarding the recent statement in this column regarding the death of comedy songs on the radio. As a writer of many comedy songs, Mahoney is qualified to explain the cause of the scarcity of such numbers:

"Gone are Lew Dockstader, Eddie Foy, Sam Bernard, Nat Wills, Harry Bulger, Bert Williams, Tom Seabrooke and many other delineators of comedy numbers, all of whom used to pay good prices for such songs. The few present-day singing comedians, however, will not pay for comedy songs, and radio artists can't understand why writers should ask them to pay for use of such songs. Which proves that there is no incentive for comedy song writers."

Nervous . . .
Headache
This Harmless Drink Gives Prompt Relief

Effervescent TABLETS

How often have you endured an aggravating Nervous Headache—through a hectic day—or a sleepless night, all because of over-strained "NERVES"? Now it is so unnecessary—so needless to allow jumpy, jangled "NERVES" to upset your normal health and happiness. When you feel one of those Nervous, Irritable, Headachy spells coming on—try this delightful Effervescent drink for prompt relief.

Just drop a Dr. Miles' Effervescent NERVINE Tablet into a glass of water. Watch it bubble up like sparkling spring water, then drink it. You will be delighted with the prompt way this harmless drink quiets your "NERVES"—relaxes the nervous tension and gives effective relief for most nervous troubles.

Mrs. Mary Smith of Vincennes, Ind., says:—

"I had Nervous Headaches and couldn't sleep at night. I have taken Dr. Miles' NERVINE and it helps me wonderfully. I surely can recommend it."

Dr. Miles' NERVINE is made in two forms—Effervescent Tablets and the old, reliable Liquid form that druggists have sold for over 50 years. In the Effervescent Tablets the time-tested NERVINE formula is combined with bicarbonate of soda and citric acid. They tend to correct hyper-acidity—a frequent cause of nervousness. All druggists have both kinds. Small size 25c. Large size $1.00.

Special Trial Offer

Take the coupon below to any drug store and the druggist will give you your first 25c pkg. of either kind to try for only 10 cents.

COUNTY BUDGET TO BE CUT $400,000

'P. S. C. Helpless on Securities'

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Well, we promised to not print anything more about the speakeasy goose unless there were fresh developments and there are. First, an ice man won the goose in the speakeasy raffle but the proprietor had to keep the goose because the ice man's beat had been changed and the speakeasy man didn't know how to locate him.

William Pfarr

The second chapter was that the proprietor tired of feeding the goose and took it home for dinner. The ice man finally heard of this and was mad. The speakeasy proprietor made amends by buying another goose and delivering it, at considerable bother, to the ice man's home.

And now the third and, we hope, last chapter. The goose died a few hours after it was delivered to the ice man.

Most of us knew vaguely that Dwight Morrow, the new Senator from New Jersey, lived in Pittsburgh. In her biography of Mr Morrow, Mary Margaret McBride sets forth the facts.

In 1875 Prof. James Morrow came to Pittsburgh to take charge of Oakdale Academy. Later he moved to Central High School to teach mathematics. In 1879 he became principal of the Fifth Ward School, then in Allegheny. From Allegheny he moved to Slippery Rock, where he organized the Normal School. While he was in Allegheny, Washington & Jefferson College gave him an honorary degree in philosophy.

Dwight Morrow was two years old when his father brought him to Pittsburgh. More than 10 years he spent in this section. Until he was 12 he was a physical weakling. As discipline, Dwight's father would command him to lean over and grasp the bottom rung of a chair. Prof. Morrow would then apply the rattan three times, smartly but not brutally. Then father would take son on his lap and explain the reason for the punishment.

Miss McBride feels that Morrow, as a boy, showed his latent talent as a diplomat when, one day, his schoolmates in old Allegheny appointed him to retrieve a ball which had been knocked into the yard of an elderly woman whom they all feared.

WHAT Y' KNOW 'BOUT THAT—HE GOT IT

Calmly the boy ventured into the house. After a long wait, during which his companions feared for his welfare, he returned, the lost ball in one hand, a half-dozen cookies in the other, and this comment: "She's a nice old lady."

W. J. Martin, Jr., who knows how people should dress, answers our critical query, "Why should the bottom button of the vest be unbuttoned?"

With a swing of his pen Mr. Martin takes us back to the time of the original Prince of Wales and his hunting lodge in Nottingham forest. We aren't in a position to question Mr. Martin's explanations, but he insists that the Prince, after eating and drinking lavishly at his lodge, unbuttoned the bottom button to relieve the pressure on his bay window. Thus attired he rode into town.

The young blades about Buckingham Palace noted this unbuttoned button and, accepting their Prince as the Beau Brummel of his day, eagerly unbuttoned their own bottom buttons. Thus an idea, which was based on comfort, has become a style. However, our expose certainly will lead to a return to the good old fashioned days when bottom vest buttons were buttoned.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 17.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

There must be an awful lot of factories, firms and individuals that have always shown some kind of appreciation to their folks on Christmas who perhaps this year on account of conditions are not able to do all they would like to, and are at a loss just what to do. Wouldn't this be more welcome than a gift: Send each one a note, and tell 'em that they are not going to be fired, that their position is secure.

Will Rogers

I believe that will be a mighty acceptable Christmas present to everybody that is on salary. It will beat any present you can send, relieve their anxiety, and let them go out and do some shopping on their own, and thereby help everybody. We are bad off. But the world ain't coming to an end yet.

Yours, WILL.

SHORT-CIRCUITIN' DOGS!

PITT ENGINEERING STUDENTS COOK 'HOT DOGS' NEW WAY

It takes exactly 1 minute 15 seconds to cook a "hot dog" to the point where it bursts right open! You spear 'em on nails connected with two electric wires and short circuit 'em tender.

COOK HOT DOGS ELECTRICALLY

Some days ago a smoker was but moments away. Hundreds of hot dogs, buns, lots of mustard and surging waves of appetites joined to present a problem that seemed to have no answer. The engineers didn't have a stove to give the dogs heat.

But one genius in that great throng so far unidentified spoke up:

"We'll short circuit 'em."

Two flat pieces of boards were punched with holes and young student engineers wired them and connected the wires to nails which protruded an inch or more. The dogs were stuck on the nails. The regular house current was turned on and in exactly one minute and 15 seconds, two dozen dogs were bursting open—hot all the way through. And so with each succeeding batch.

ZIONIST SCORES ENGLISH RULE

England has betrayed its promises of co-operation in Palestine, approved by the League of Nations, Louis Lipsky, former president of the Zionist Organization, declared in an address at the Maccabean festival of Hanukkah in the Y. M. & W. H. A. last night.

He assailed Lord Passfield's "White Paper," and the British government's restriction of immigration to Palestine, and urged solidarity of protest and an organized system of combatting the obstacles being placed in the path of the fulfillment of rehabilitation.

JURISDICTION IS LIMITED, SAYS AINEY

Comission Chairman Says Law Does Not Give Board Control of Utilities Issues

HARRISBURG Dec. 17.—(INS.)—In that it never has given the commission power to regulate security issues of public utility companies, the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission law is defective, W. D. B. Ainey chairman of the commission, declared in a letter, made public today, to an unnamed state senator.

The letter, it was stated, was written in answer to one received from the legislator inquiring as to the position of the commission "concerning the advisability of amendments to the public service company law giving the commission jurisdiction over the issuance of securities by public utility companies."

UP IN WASHINGTON

Question of this jurisdiction was brought to the fore in Washington two weeks ago when Solicitor C. G. Russell, of the Federal Power Commission, attacked the Pennsylvania commission for failure to regulate the securities of the Clarion River Power Company.

The controversy was renewed in Washington yesterday when Commissioner Russell, in a letter to Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, reiterated his charges and declared he owed no apology, as demanded by Ainey, for his criticism of the Pennsylvania commission.

"DEFECT IN LAW"

In the letter to the state senator, revealed today, Ainey declared the commission now, and for many years past, has been of the opinion that issuance of securities by public utilities companies should be under its jurisdiction and control, adding:

"The law, as finally adopted, did not contain such provisions, and it is the commission's opinon that the absence of such authority is a marked defect in the law."

2 HURT AS AUTO HITS TROLLEY

A man and a woman were injured, the latter seriously, when their automobile crashed into a street car at Elysian street and Fifth avenue at midnight. They were taken to Pittsburgh Hospital, where they gave their names as James Gannon, 36, of 86 North Euclid avenue, Bellevue, and Linda Marmo, 35, of 52 Chatham street. The woman was said to have a fractured skull. Police said they would place a charge of reckless driving against Gannon who suffered cuts about the face and head.

Suffering a fractured right arm when he was struck by an automobile at Brownsville road and Crailo street, Carrick, last night, Ollie Burmaster, 64, of 119 Poplar street, Carrick, was in the South Side Hospital today. Vito Disalvo, 36, of 125 Schuckert street, Carrick, driver of the car, told police, they said, that the victim stepped in the path of his machine.

CITY PROPOSES BIG BOND ISSUE

The people of Pittsburgh will be asked to approve or reject a bond issue next year.

While no exact estimate has been made, the issue will be as large as the law permits, and will include virtually every improvement demanded by civic associations of the city.

The total mentioned today is $30,000,000, which exceeds the city borrowing power. The issue to be put to the voters probably will be considerably less.

Rail and river terminals, new sewers, flood district improvements, street widenings, new boulevards, better lights, all demanded from Council, will be in the issue.

President of Council John S. Herron, at a meeting yesterday, admitted that the issue is being contemplated—an admission that revealed no secret, as the matter has been known and published for some time.

The question was mentioned publicly in Council for the first time yesterday when Harry A. Little demanded action on the improvement of the North Side flood districts.

AID DENIED CARNEGIE GROUP

Armstrong, McGovern Join In Slash; Park Projects Suffer; Tax Slash Asked

The County Commissioners kicked up their heels today and, by early afternoon, had left wide open spaces in the proposed 1931 budget. Hitting the North and South Parks, and refusing Carnegie Institute an educational appropriation, they cut $209,984.09 from the list. Total cuts for the sessions were to mount above the $400,000 mark this afternoon.

The commissioners denied a 1931 appropriation for educational work at Carnegie Institute, refusing the pleas of John L. Porter, vice-president of the board trustees, who appeared for Dr. Samuel Harden Church, president, to protest the cut.

OPPOSES 'LUXURIES'

Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong told Porter that the money was needed for necessities rather than "luxuries." To which Porter replied:

"Is intelligence, then, a luxury?"

Siding with Armstrong was Charles C. McGovern, minority commissioner, who announced his intention of requesting the commission to reduce the 1930 tax by one mill. McGovern said drastic curtailment of outlay and new income were necessary to any tax reduction.

The County's Carnegie Institute appropriation has amounted to $15,000 yearly in the past. The City of Pittsburgh and the Board of Education appropriated like amounts.

The $45,000 thus raised by the Institute has been used for transporting school children of the city and county to the Institute, wher they have heard lectures on natural history, painting, architecture, geology, kindred subjects and to send curators and lecturers to the schools.

JOBLESS EDUCATORS

Porter was questioned on the result of the cut, after his plea to the Commissioners for the appropriation had failed. He said:

"The same service costs the city of Cleveland, where they have a most excellent museum and art collection, about $1,500,000 yearly. Detroit, Buffalo and other cities are forced to subsidize this educational work of their museums in the same expensive manner.

"Lack of this money will throw curators and lecturers out of work. That is lamentable. Worse, however, is that it will deprive school children of Allegheny County of part of their educations."

The Department of Maintenance of Juveniles suffered a loss of $31,500, in what Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong calls the struggle to save the taxpayers' money. One slice took $15,000 from the account when the three commissioners decided that $275,000 was too much money to pay for boarding the juveniles. A proposed survey of the department's field, for a report to the commissioners, was postponed in the interests of economy.

HOW ELWYN, JOINING CITY, CLEARS CASTLE SHANNON'S WAY

ELWYN, THE LITTLE COMMUNITY THAT VOTED, 80 TO 16, TO JOIN CITY ON FIRST MONDAY IN JANUARY, THUS CLEARING WAY FOR CASTLE SHANNON ANNEXATIONISTS INACTIVE BECAUSE THEIR DISTRICT WASN'T CONTIGUOUS TO THE CITY

Elwyn's Voters Approve Annexation to City At Special Poll

The City of Pittsburgh next month will take over Elwyn, in Baldwin Township, as a result of a special election held in the community yesterday on the question of annexation. Ninety-six persons went to the polls and cast votes and the result showed 80 persons in favor of annexation and 16 against. The community will officially become a part of Pittsburgh the first Monday of next month.

An important feature of the special election was that the vote placed Elwyn in a position where it will form the connection to enable Castle Shannon to vote on the subject of annexation. Some Castle Shannon citizens have indicated they would favor a union with Pittsburgh but the fact that no portion of the borough joined the city prevented consideration of the matter.

350 RESIDENTS

There are more than 350 residents in the community, 187 of them qualified voters. The district has a property valuation of $300,000. It adjoins Overbrook, now a part of Pittsburgh.

Among active supporters for the annexation were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McKeever, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miltenberger, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Foley, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. W. McHenry, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Evan Evans, John Kotis, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Neiman, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Seigworth, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Vidt, Mr. and Mrs. James Pritchard, and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Bianchi.

CITES CONDITIONS

Mr. McKeever, whose home is within several hundred feet of the City of Pittsburgh line, declared that within 10 years of residence in the township the only benefit from taxes he has received has been the removal of garbage and rubbish.

F. J. Crown was judge of election and other members of the board were Mrs. Alice Pritchard, inspector; James Pritchard, clerk; A. J. Ransil, inspector, Mrs. McKeever and Mrs. Miltenberger were overseers.

Easy way to relieve Colds

Breathing Vapex is the modern way of relieving colds. Merely put a drop of this delightful inhalant on your handkerchief during the day and at each end of your pillow at night.

Then breathe the soothing vapor. In a few breaths, your head clears, your nose opens up, and you are relieved of the distress of a cold.

Vapex is very inexpensive. The $1 bottle contains fifty applications—an average of only 2c apiece. Millions of bottles are sold yearly. It is approved by Good Housekeeping because it is safe for every one—even little children.

For safety's sake, always ask for V-A-P-E-X—the original inhalant—and do not accept an inferior product that claims to be "just as good."

Spirited voting today marked the election of officers for the Pittsburgh Taxicab Drivers' Union in their headquarters, 527 Fifth avenue. The polls opened at 10 a. m. and balloting was to continue until 10 p. m., to give the men on various turns an opportunity to cast their ballots.

Peter V. Day, president, was said not to be seeking re-election and the fight apparently had narrowed down to a contest between Michael Burns and R. Smith. Secretary-Treasurer John Stackhouse was being opposed by Jack Tait, and Fred Schaffer, business agent, found most of his opposition centered on James Reilly and Joseph Scheringer.

SCORE POLICY IN LOCK, DAM BUILDING

Harbor Men to Seek Laws Assuring Them Voice in Future Choice of Sites

Charging government engineers with "colossal blunders" in lock and dam building in this section, members of the National Association of Harbor Pilots at the national convention next March will seek legislation making it mandatory that their advice be sought and "their opinions respected" when new locks and dams are contemplated.

This was made known today in a letter to Col. G. W. Spaulding, U. S. A., government division engineer at St. Louis, from Harry Black, secretary of Harbor 25, of the Pilots' Association here.

OPPOSE ROSTRAVER SITE

Pilots on the three rivers in the Western Pennsylvania district have complained vehemently of the contemplated selection of the Rostraver site on the Monongahela River to replace Lock No. 4, near Monessen. The Dunlevy and Bamford sites, nearby, according to Black, are recommended.

In his letter, Black said:

"What we, (the pilots), who are responsible for the safe delivery of the very valuable and heavy tows on the Ohio River and tributaries, would like to know, is why we are treated as nonentities in these very important matters."

ASSAILS FEDERAL MEN

Black said the Dunlevy site suggested for the new lock was opposed because of dredging which has taken place there in past years. Dredged channels, he says, are what have made the Ohio River navigable.

Arguments of this type, Black asserted, are "mere piffle." He declared they show that the government men are "unqualified by experience" to judge.

Pointed out as "blunders" are the government improvement projects at Davis Island and the piers for the Riverton Highway Bridge.

Takes 15 Judges To Grant Divorce

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The services of 15 judges were needed by Mrs. Marian Hanelin before she was granted a divorce from Dr. William B. Hanelin by Superior Judge Rudolph Desort.

The fifteenth judge finally granted the decree after hearing the case intermittently for two weeks, during which he tried vainly to bring about an agreement. She was awarded the separation on grounds of desertion after waiving charges of cruelty.

Destruction of 265 gallons of whisky, 62 quarts of gin and 10 gallons of wine, seized by prohibition agents at 323 East Third avenue, Homestead, October 23, was ordered by Federal Judge F. P. Minnie Markowitz was designated as the owner of the liquors.

LEGION DEBATES EINSTEIN BAN

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Characterizing Dr. Albert Einstein as a Pacifist, Dr. A D Houghton, one of the organizers of the American Legion, has suggested action to prevent the visit to California of the German mathematician.

The suggestion, offered before Los Angeles Legionnaires last night, brought forth mingled applause and expressions of disfavor but no action.

The attack, Dr. Houghton said, was based upon expressions attributed to Dr. Einstein in a recent New York speech. He was quoted as urging men of military age to refuse to fight as a means of preventing war.

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The Jewish Telegraphic Agency says Dr. Albert Einstein, now on his way from New York to California, may take up his residence in some country other than Germany if the Fascists obtain control of the Fatherland.

Dr. Boris Brutzkus said Einstein told him he would prefer to settle in some quiet resort in Southern France, where he could carry on his work quietly if the Hitlerites gained the upper hand.

S. S. BELGENLAND, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—When the Jewish Telegraphic Agency's correspondent showed Dr. Albert Einstein a copy of a Berlin report saying he might not return to Germany, but would settle in another country if the Fascists should take over the German government, the professor did not deny it.

BROWNE LAUDS JEWS IN TALK ON RACE

Author Predicts End of 'Isms' When Prejudice Disappears; Church Losing

A day is coming when prejudice will disappear and along with it all the "isms" and "ologies" that now are the subject of so much discussion, Lewis Browne, internationally known author and lecturer, who might be termed the "Darrow" of Judaism, told an audience of 500 at the Y. M. & H. A., last night. But if you have a son studying to be a clergyman let him continue, Browne warned, because the time is a long way off.

His lecture was startling in its matter of fact treatment of his subject, "Jews Are Like That." About 500 persons heard him.

FEW DIFFERENCES

Among other things he said:

"The difference between Jews and other people is psychological. There is no biological, religious or racial differentiation. Because they have been living in the chinks between social boulders for centuries, either looked down upon or askance at, the Jews have developed a tremendous urge to live."

Browne predicted the passing of the church, but said that Voltaire also predicted this 300 years ago and admitted that he also may be wrong.

Intermarriage of Jews since the time of Solomon, Browne said, has been responsible for the growth of the Jews, who always have been and for many generations will be a minority.

LEAVENING JEWS

He concluded his lecture saying:

"The Jews are a leaven in society. Until that day comes when prejudice dies, the Jew will not die. He is the eternal protestant in the world and as that he will remain, scorned perhaps by the ignorant, but accomplishing his destiny by the most direct and high strung reactionary methods."

After the lecture in an open forum in answer to a question concerning the restoration of Palestine, he said:

"It should be restored. There should be one economic venture in which Jews are not successful and there is an atmosphere about this age old homeland that brings a spiritual reaction in Jews as no other place in the world."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Scott Bridal Attendants Announced

Before I talk about that most notable event, the Pittsburgh Club cotillion, I want to talk about who's going to be in the bridal party for the wedding of Elizabeth Lupton Scott, daughter of the J. King Scotts, of Devon road, and George Reily Bailey, son of the Edward Baileys, of Harrisburg, on January 8. The wedding will take place at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon in the Shadyside Presbyterian Church with the bride's uncle, the Rev. Dilworth Lupton, of Cleveland, officiating, assisted by the rector, the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr. A very small reception in the Pittsburgh Golf Club will follow.

Mrs. John H. Ricketson III, the former Anne King Scott, will be her sister's matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be Genevieve Lord Bell, Mrs. David Meade Gilmore, Virginia Long Goldsbury, Mrs. Thomas J. Hilliard, Ruth Mitchell, of St. Paul, cousin of the bride-elect; Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland, Mary Robinson Oliver and Mrs. William Lloyd Standish III.

The flower girls will be Mr. Bailey's two young nieces, Kate Crichton, of New York, and Martha Gross, of Harrisburg.

John Sherwin, Jr., of Cleveland, will be best man, and William S. Bailey, of Harrisburg; Archibald Marshall Bell, Jr., Edward M. Green, Jr., of Chicago; Thomas J. Hilliard, Raleigh T. Knapp, of Baltimore; Erard A. Matthiessen, of New York; George Wolf Reily III, of Harrisburg; John H. Ricketson III, Jess Sweetser, William R. Scott, uncle of the bride-elect; W. Stuart Symington III, of Baltimore, and Edward R. Stettinius, of New York, will be ushers.

* * *

Stately simplicity was the keynote of the cotillion last night in the exclusive old Pittsburgh Club, the event of events of the social season, an invitation to which is coveted by every debutante.

Buds at Cotillion

There was something sedate in the atmosphere, a hint of something of the leisurely dignity of past decades. Perhaps the long, graceful gowns, with white and off-white tones, blues, ranging from sky-blue to turquoise, and occasional shell-pinks predominating, heightened the impression. As accent there were regal black velvet and lace gowns. And there were orchids and rosebuds and gardenias for shoulder corsages.

The ballroom was simply decorated with smilax and cibotium ferns, the orchestra being screened with the ferns.

* * *

Leaders' Partners

And before I talk about the patronesses who were there I must tell you about the gowns of these honored buds. One of the most striking gowns seem at the ball was that of likable Betty McKay. It had a brief bodice of cloth of silver with a narrow sash of the same material, and a long swirling skirt of white crepe. And the bodice was cut with a cowl neckline and low back decolletage.

Quaint was the period frock Madelaine Alexander chose, suggestive of the gown her great-grandmother probably wore to her first cotillion. It was of delphinium blue taffeta, showing the revival of the off-the-shoulder mode of another day, and having a full skirt with deep circular ruffles of the same material.

Elizabeth Childs chose a shimmering deep rose satin gown made with an indescribably attractive cut and draped skirt and sophisticated decolletage. And Mary Magee, daughter of Mrs. Rebecca Jennings Magee, chose a smartly simple gown of white chiffon, molded to the hip-line with rows and rows of shirring, with sequins decorating the bodice.

* * *

And before I describe any more of the lovely gowns, I want to take time to remark that white is ever so popular, more popular than modish black or any color, and that it is smart in crepe, chiffon, tulle, lace or satin. Satin gowns in white and all shades were numerous last night, with the supple, shimmering material lending itself gracefully to the complicated whims of fashion.

Satin Is Popular

Among the patronesses were Mrs. William Christopher Robinson, striking in a dignified gown of black velvet and a long black velvet wrap furred with white ermine; her sister, Mrs. Maitland Alexander, Madelaine's mother, in black velvet with an exquisite wrap of cloth of silver with an interesting old-blue motif; Mrs. James Verner Scaife in a black ensemble; Mrs. Robert Milligan in Paddy green crepe; Mrs. T. Howe Nimick, blue and silver brocade.

Others asked to be patronesses were Mrs. J. Frederic Byers, Mrs. Clinton L. Childs, Mrs. George L. Collord, Mrs. Harry Darlington, Jr., Mrs. Harmar D. Denny, Mrs. William J. Holland, Mrs. Thomas J. McKay, Mrs. Richard Beatty Mellon, Mrs. Henry R. Rea, Mrs. John H. Ricketson, Jr., Mrs. Richard Hollyday Semple, Mrs. Douglas Stewart and Mrs. Harvey N. Van Voorhis.

* * *

Gay Gowns Of Buds

Anne Rose chose an interesting gown of eggshell taffeta with the skirt made up of tiers of narrow circular ruffles of the same material and having a narrow sash of orange velvet. And I believe I saw her sister Margaret in a similar gown. Sylvia Robertson chose robin's egg blue crepe, with a corsage of gardenias, and a black velvet and white fox wrap.

* * *

White crepe with three tiers of narrow ruffles suggesting a peplum was worn by Helen Leovy. Mrs. Alexander Robinson chose shell-pink satin, and Louise Evans looked striking in a smartly draped white crepe satin gown and a red and gold brocaded wrap with a collar of white fox.

Intricate Designs

Eleanor Rowe wore black velvet and ecru lace and a black velvet and ermine wrap. Stately was Louise Evans in draped white satin and a corsage of orchids. Jane Allderdice wore beige lace, and Rosamond Fitch chose a picturesque gown of white tulle and chiffon with the bodice richly beaded.

CHILDREN'S COSTUMED CHORUS IN TUESDAY MUSICAL CLUB PAGEANT YESTERDAY

Part of the cast of 100 that took part in an elaborate, colorful pageant written by Anna T. Law and produced yesterday in Upper Memorial Hall by the Tuesday Musical Club.

Tuesday Musical Pageant Presented by Cast of Over 100 Performers

The pageant written for the Tuesday Musical Club by Anna T. Law and presented yesterday at its Christmas meeting was a colorful and impressive series of pictures in which more than 100 persons participated. The singing of the choral was one of the outstanding features of the afternoon. Never have these 80 voices blended more beautifully than they did yesterday when they furnished the major part of the musical background for the pageantry. Dr. Charles N. Boyd, of course, directed and Elsie Breese Mitchell was accompanist.

The pageant was arranged in a series of six pictures, showing first Hope (Jean McCrory Newman) surrounded by angles of Light and angels of Doubt, then the shepherds in the field, Mary and Joseph at the manger, the arrival of the wise men, the adoration of the shepherds and, finally, the presentation of the Child in the temple.

Mildred Eiler made a lovely Mary; Cass Ward Whitney was Joseph; the three kings were impersonated by John Dickson Fulton, Russell Mitchell, Jr., and Robert Owrey; the Rev. R. K. Merker was Simeon, and Lucille Miller Werner was Anna.

A string quartet composed of Elizabeth Coles MacDonald, Mrs. E. Lee Harris, Carolyn St. John and Christine Adams Jones, contributed its gifts to one or two of the episodes and there were solos by Miss Eiler, Robert Bodycombe and the three kings. Elizabeth Young was the narrator.

Preceding the pageant were carols sung by choir boys from Calvary Episcopal Church and violin numbers by young Oscar Davis.

At the tea tables were Mrs. R. G. Himmelrich, Miss Henrietta Gerwig, Mrs. James S. McGill, Mrs. George Milliken, Mrs. A. L. Schiel, Mrs. Ida Kleber Todd, Mrs. Velma D. Wilson and Mrs. Leone Marquis Woelfel. Gifts for the needy of the city were received.

JOB OUTLOOK IMPROVES

Beginning of municipal and other emergency building operations for the relief of unemployment soon will give work to thousands in the state. This, and a slight increase in soft coal production in the western and central fields, and brisk business in the anthracite section of Pennsylvania, are the most encouraging news in the U. S. Department of Labor report for the period ending December 15.

Manufacturing in the state showed no particular gain, but there was no decrease in employment over the preceding survey period.

A $3,000,000 steel freight car order, distributed among the Pennsylvania Railroad shops at Enola, Altoona and Pitcairn, promised steady work for several hundred men who have been on furlough.

An improvement in the textile industry was noted, but these mills have been on only part time schedules with greatly curtailed forces. The coke and oil sections show no encouraging symptoms. Foundries, machine shops, electrical equipment plants and glass factories are running far below normal in the number of workers employed.

WELFARE FUND $1,557,592

Officials of the Welfare Fund, in a final report issued today, paid high tribute to the generosity of Pittsburghers in over-subscribing the 1931 budget by $37,000. The total amount raised was $1,557,592.44.

The fund is to be distributed to those worthy of relief through 39 welfare agencies. It was pointed out that the amount asked was a 30 per cent increase over the 1930 budget, and that in view of unemployment conditions, the over-subscription will go far in relieving distress that could not have been given attention but for the great success of the campaign.

PROPOSE STATE RULE OF WATER

Directors of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce yesterday voted favorably on the proposal that the federal government leave to the states all possible control over utilization of water resources within the commonwealth. The action was in accord with the referendum on national water power policies of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The local chamber favored the plan that the federal and state appropriations be increased for the collection and publication of information on water resources and that each state should have an agency to promote and regulate development of its water resources.

J. Fred Lissfelt

The English Singers of London came again last night to Carnegie Hall and sang for the Art Society. Flora Mann, Nellie Carson, Lillian Berger, Norman Stone, Norman Notley and Cuthbert Kelly, a sextet of simple voices, seat themselves about a Tudor table and in the Elizabethan manner give us authentic readings of music from England's Golden Age.

There were motets of most intricate counterpoint, gay madrigals and ballets, plaintive and virile folk songs, and, in commemoration of the season, many beautiful carols. To name any of these songs "best" is impossible and beside the point, because they all so thoroughly express the art idea of their day, and because the technique of this group of singers is so perfect as to make every tone like a jewel, every phrase an exquisitely designed setting for those jewels.

One can listen all evening to this music without the slightest fatigue; indeed, one comes away refreshed as from no other music. Here is where art has veiled all skill, and so difficult and wonderful an arrangement as Peter Warlock's Corpus Christi is sung with the same ease as the simplest dancing melody.

The concert was not without humor, both in the gentle poetry of the texts and in Cuthbert Kelly's apt introductory remarks. As for historical music, let us have more of those jolly street cryes!

J. FRED LISSFELT.

DEAR LITTLE GIRLS:

I am delighted with the reception my "Tickletoes" doll is getting. I know that I have already made scores and scores of little girls very happy. In fact, I know I have found for their parents the way to get a wonder doll that might otherwise be missing at Christmas time.

You see there is so much unemployment this year that hundreds of children will have a holiday that will be less cheerful if I hadn't found a way to put sunshine into it. Of course, I couldn't afford to give away hundreds of these marvelous, expensive "Tickletoes" dolls without something in return, but so many little girls have already successfully done what I asked them to do and have already secured their "Tickletoes" for a playmate, that I know I am not asking too much.

Very little girls—5 years of age and under—will need the help of their mother and sister and daddy, but girls older than that can easily earn their own dolly. You don't have to pay any money or collect any money to get a "Tickletoes," but you will have to get your friends and relatives to help you.

I am getting hundreds of letters every day from little girls who want to know what they must do to get a wonder "Tinkletoes" doll. Here are the names of some of the little girls who have written to me during the last few days:

If you succeed in getting a "Tickletoes" dolly, you will be the happiest little girl in all Pittsburgh and vicinity. "Tickletoes" is big and beautiful, opens and closes her eyes, goes to sleep, sucks her thumbs and plays with her toes. She's nearly as tall as this newspaper is long, can clasp her hands and sit down just like a real baby. She has three separate voices, rubber legs and arms, is unbreakable and is beautifully dressed in organdy with stockings and slippers to match.

The time is getting short if you want a "Tickletoes" before Christmas. Clip my coupon and send it to me today and I'll write back and tell you how you can get this marvelous doll for a playmate. Goodby for today.

Just now one can stroll in any direction, and from the gayest avenue to the tiniest side street we find the warm glow of Christmas Greetings in greenery and candlelight.

From the most magnificent wreaths with yards of trailing red satin ribbons, to the tiniest touch of tissue paper ornaments, there is good will and thought expressed.

At Thanksgiving time the decorations are golden yellow and russet brown. The Fourth of July, Memorial Day, illustrious birthdays are commemorated with fitting windows.

What pleasure they give to those who stop and appreciate them.

TELL IT TO SALLY

'Working Wife' Is in for Some More Slams!

Wait till he can support you before you marry him! Never, never be a working wife!

That was Elnora's battle cry.

Working Wives, to hear HER tell it, were responsible for What Ails Civilization these days. Their children, if any, grew up to be bums . . . their husbands were neglected and miserable. And when it came to taking the wages from more deserving folk, the only difference between them and regular thieves was that their technique was slicker.

So her cure-all for this was to not get married until the Big Boy had his roll.

Being a more or less Working Wife ourself, we asked the bunch How About It—and here's the result:

Husband Needs Help

"So Working Wives dash to business every day just for fun, and to go to lunch with the boss, do they?" she snorts. "My! What a lot that girl has to learn! It must be a queer kind of office she works in, if the best they can do is flirt all day. They expect you to work where I am . . . yes, I'm one of 'em. And my boss isn't interested in Giddy Gerties.

"And I'd be glad to stay at home if I could. Sometimes I could scream, I'm so exhausted. Why do I keep on? Because my husband, as good a scout as there is, bends over a desk all day long, working his head off, for not much money. And we have to eat.

"Most of us working wives are helping to avert business depression, because we could scarcely keep business going on the wretched pay that our men get. This Elnora says that we 'spend too much on clothes.' Well, well! I guess somebody gets a salary for making and marketing those clothes, don't they? So I can't for the life of me see where our buying them—supposing we do—can possibly 'keep the country poor.' Most of us save a little nest egg besides, so we'll still be able to buy a few things, if we do get out of work. And that certainly isn't making the country poorer.

Works for Happiness

"It's all very well, Elnora, to say that you will wait until you can find a husband 'who can support you'—but when you've waited for six years, hoping against hope, like we did, you get sort of discouraged, and begin to figure that maybe the only way to get a little ahead is to pool your money, get married, and keep on helping out. And besides, if every one of us took your stand, practically three-quarters of the women in America would be old maids and, if that would be any benefit to this country, I'll eat my hat.

"Most of us, however, are game enough to take a chance on the men we love, and work for the happiness we want. So don't try to make it any harder for us, because most of us would cry for joy if we could stay home and loaf and still know that we wouldn't starve if friend husband lost his job."

"That Elnora has a lot of nerve," she cries, "to say any such thing. My children aren't neglected, or likely to be gangsters . . . and the plain truth is that I would never have had them if I hadn't been willing to take a chance on working.

"The man I fell in love with had nothing to write home about in the shape of money. I could have sat at home, yes, and counted the flyspecks on the wall or something, I suppose . . . in a dark housekeeping room somewhere. Or I could have kept on working and 'waited' as this bright girl advises. Either way, children would have been out of the question, of course. So we decided to belong to each other, and both work till we had a little money ahead. And then to have our children. We did it. We have three. The oldest is 15 now. And the finest family you could wish to see. Fine standing in school. Healthy. Ambitious. Decent. And devoted to both their father and me, although I've worked practically every day since they were born. I've seen that a competent, kind and understanding woman was always in my house to look after them when I was away. In fact I think it was better for both them and myself to have her. I wasn't with them too much, and I could enjoy them when I was there. They never irritated me, or I them. It seems to me that this happy family is worth far more to this country than years and years of sterile 'waiting' for their father to make his pile would have been."

Different Opinions

Clara, however, is for Elnora a million!

"Bravo, good girl!" she applauds. "I'm glad that somebody has had the sand to come out and hit this working wife idea. I've had all kinds of trouble getting work myself just because they won't stay home where they belong. Their hogging all the jobs should be stopped!"

But this idea hands Kitty a laugh.

"Oh, they're to wait,' are they," she asks, "until the B. F. can keep 'em home in style? Well, well now! What are they going to be doing while they wait? Won't they be just as much of a drug on the market, single and 'waiting,' as they are now, married? You hand me a big laugh, lady. No, I'm not one of 'em. And I've seen them holding jobs I'd have liked. But wives are people, as well as you and me, and folks shouldn't get snooty with them.

"Personally, I've always found that getting work depended on your pep and ability, not on whether you had a husband or not!

"And, besides, who knows? If they stop married women from working, likely the next step will be trying to stop all of 'em! Then where would you be, young lady! Better look out and stay away from dynamite!"

So, there you have your Yeas and Nays.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Gels who nibble between meals, raid the refrigerator and take cake or pie to bed with them should be made to understand that the stomach is a muscle, and like any muscle it gets tired. There should be no munching. From five to six hours are required to empty the stomach completely; there should therefore be a five-hour period between meals.

Women who weigh more than beauty laws allow should choose their dress styles with care. Frocks must not be tight; the tight toga reveals flesh instead of hiding it. Bouffant fabrics like taffetas and large figured materials are like extra pounds of fat, or inches added to the waist and hip measurement. Reducing is possible, with no harm to the health. The main requirement is will power.

Don't forget your orange juice every morning. Good for babies, good for adults. Puts ginger in the spirits, color in the cheeks and steel springs in the steps, not to mention the fact that it helps build sound teeth. To the juice of two oranges add the juice of one half a lemon. Skinny slimps should take a teaspoonful of cod liver oil three times a day. The oil fills them out where they need filling.

Let sunlight stream into the house, even if rugs fade a bit. Better faded rugs than declining spirits. The housewife should do her marketing along about noon when sunlight is brightest. Babies should be placed in sunlit windows when they cannot be out of doors. Old Sol is a motor that throws out vitalizing influences, sooths jumping nerves, helps to sterilize the skin, increasing the blood supply in the capillaries. And to think that our grandmas fought him tooth and nail!

The longer the cuticle cream is massaged into the flesh, the better the results. Cold cream will do, or any oil, like mineral oil, olive oil or vaseline. Let it remain on over night. Next morning bathe with soapy water and lift up the skin with an orange-wood stick.

Girlology is an interesting study. What are they wearing, what are they saying, what are they doing to their lips and their eyebrows—these girls? In the pageant of human creatures, they furnish the decorative element. And they know it. In the Pullman, on the boulevard, on the decks of an ocean liner, they draw all eyes their way. It is taken for granted that they make themselves attractive and presentable. Why not?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Why Wait for Your Muscles to "Quit?"

DR COPELAND

It is only with good health and vigor that we can depend upon accuracy and speed of the body muscles. How much better it is to learn how to keep fit than to patch up the body after some disease has attacked us.

Do you realize how dependent you are on the power to move? Our body muscles are under orders every single waking moment. We just have to see to it that they are kept in good condition for the wear and tear of living.

Upon the ease and perfection of movement is founded your welfare as a human being. You do your daily tasks, you go about your affairs, you make yourself useful through the muscular developments you have adopted.

Every form of motion depends upon the ability of joints and muscles to act in harmony. The bones of the body are related to each other through the joints. One of the chief uses of the bones is to furnish a secure place of attachment for the muscles which operate the movements of the body. The bones work freely because the joints give them freedom to play.

The mechanism of the body is truly wonderful. In the normal person the bones are of the right size and shape. All the machinery is ready for motion, but continued motion depends upon how we use and care for the machinery.

There is no voluntary motion without muscular control exercised by nerves and brain. The play of the muscles depends a lot upon the nervous system. One part of the body depends on all the other parts. The whole must be kept in good repair.

Everything depends upon proper nutrition, the right exercise, rest and sleep, fresh air and sunlight. Your diet must be such that tissues, muscles, bones and nerves are well nourished. Your exercise must be adequate and not too vigorous. If you don't observe the rules of right living you have to pay the penalty in less efficient muscular action.

Too many persons neglect all or some of these important rules of living, until all of a sudden they are played out. A careless person may go a good many years, and, according to his "constitution," or his resistance to disease, he may enjoy apparently good health until he breaks down, long before he should.

How many persons there are who have a chronic tired feeling and exhaustion, or some form of rheumatism or other disease fastened upon them. They are handicapped in their movements.

Of course, there are many who are overtaken by misfortune, and our hearts go out to such. But for those who are able to control their destinies, it is a solemn duty to keep fit, and to live as useful lives as possible. To them I am talking today.

Everyone should have daily exercise. Even miniature golf has its good points. Walking is one of the most splendid of exercises.

A lot has been said lately about exercise, and more exercise. But words mean nothing. Action does. Don't be one of those persons, like the proverbial ostrich with its head in the sand, to say, "It doesn't matter." It does matter whether you keep yourself fit. To live a useful life, that is absolutely essential.

FUR TRIMMED TWEEDS ENJOY FASHION SUCCESS IN COUNTRY

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—Tweed seems to be leaving town and confining itself in larger measure and, except for strictly tailored suits, to the charms of the rustic scene. The tweed suit created for country wear seems just now to be particularly lovely, suitable to the country and is, therefore, beloved by women who come to town only for doctor, dentist and dressmaker. Brown and beige are among the favorites both separately and together, so far as hue is concerned, and a simplicity of detail without too much severity seems to be the keynote of these suits. Skirts are of a sensible length and groups of pleats make for comfort and ease in walking, without which a skirt would err on the side of bulkiness, something that even the most indifferent country mouse will definitely avoid. Beaver, brown dyed mole and astrakan are the most favored furs used to trim these trig but not trite suits.

* * *

BEIGE IS SHOWING its hand after many people prophesied its relegation to the sartorial shades for a while. But so many women insist on beige clothes, and as these women are among the smartest here, it is but logical that women who like the color but refuse to wear any but approved shades are hurrying to their favorite houses and ordering something in beige. This shade is especially nice during the autumn and early winter, as it very definitely suggests sunshiny days and gala occasions.

* * *

* * *

THE SAME HOUSE is responsible for the smart suit which is of brown and beige tweed. It is belted with brown suede and has capelet sleeves bordered with brown astrakan. The collar, in the form of a scarf, is of the tweed. Narrow groups of pleats mark the front and back of the skirt.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The "Bread and Butter Note"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. What is the bread-and-butter note?

2. When dining in a restaurant and the meat is served from a side dish, how do you put the gravy from the side dish on your dinner plate?

3. At a dance, when the young man takes the young lady he has just danced with back to her place, and thanks her for the dance, what reply should she make? GRATEFUL.

1. The note of appreciation of hospitality that we write after we have made a visit, is usually referred to as the "bread-and-butter letter." In it we tell our hostess what a good time we have had at her home, how much we appreciated her planning a party or parties for our happiness, how much we enjoyed meeting her friends, and any other comment of appreciation that we think is appropriate.

2. With the serving spoon. If a spoon is not served for this purpose, the waiter or waitress will bring one, if you ask for one.

3. Some reply that will mean that she, too, enjoyed the dance—"It was a delightful dance," or "It was delightful, Bob," or "I enjoyed that dance so much, Tom."

An Unnecessary Formality

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

Not so long ago I gave a luncheon to several friends. They each wrote me a lovely bread and butter letter (as the saying goes) of appreciation. Should I reply to these letters, and if I should, what is proper to say. RUTH.

It is not necessary to reply to these notes.

Household Hints

Rinse off the lemon squeezer as soon as you are finished with it. It will save you much time later on.

The novice linen purchaser need not be at the mercy of someone anxious to effect a sale. Ask for a sample of the linen under consideration, rub it hard between the hands. If a fuzzy nap appears the article has cotton in it as well as linen threads.

Water from boiled cabbage and onions should not be emptied down the sink, as it causes the odor to permeate the house. Pour it on the ground, as it will act as a fertilizer for many things, such as fruit trees, rhubarb and hardy plants.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Members of "Council" Learn of Veritzen's Plan

Dicky turned to Purnell with a crisp query as I took down the telephone receiver.

"Well?" he said.

"I called him," I interposed swiftly, then said "Yes?" into the telephone mouthpiece. But my eyes were on Dicky's and saw the petulant question in them. He could not understand why I had summoned the bellboy when we were all so tensely occupied with the task of thwarting Philip Veritzen in his avowed intention of having an interview with Noel.

Usually I am impatient at telephone delays, but I blessed the droning voice of Central when she intoned the familiar words, "On your call to Sag Harbor, we are trying to get your number. We will call you."

"Thank you," I said perfunctorily, and hanging up the receiver, spoke directly to my husband.

"If you get Katherine before I come back into the room don't tell her what we want. I'll explain when I get back."

Dicky's eyebrows drew together, and I saw that, despite my effort to leave everything in his hand, I had offended him by what he was probably terming my officiousness. But I had no other recourse. I must take no risk of Philip Veritzen learning what we were telephoning to Katherine.

"Purnell!" I said hurriedly, when I had closed the door. "You have been very faithful in our service, and so I am going to ask you to help us tonight in something very important."

The bellboy straightened his small figure to the greatest height of which it was capable and said with unction:

"I am most happy to serve you, Mis' Graham. Please inform me of what you want me to do."

"We have put in a call for our home in Sag Harbor," I told him. "We—are—afraid that someone may try to find out what the conversation is—try to bribe the operator or something. I wish I were as sure of the boy on now as I am of you, but I do not even know his name."

Purnell shook his head ruefully.

"Nobody's sure of that man," he said. "He hasn't been here very long, and I don't think he's going to stay. He isn't the kind of boy this hotel usually employs, and he'll bear watching. Now, I'll tell you, Miss' Graham, what I'll do. If nobody's got to him already, I'll fix it so I can change places with him right away before that telephone call, and then I'll handle it myself. All I have to do is to tell the night clerk that you want me on the switchboard until you get through telephoning. But if he's already listened in——"

"He'll hear nothing," I said, "for we'll say nothing important until we know you're on the switchboard."

"That's all right then." He turned away, hesitated, turned back to me, plainly troubled.

"Is there anything you want to say to me, but are not sure about it?" I queried encouragingly.

His face cleared.

"Yes'm, there is," he said. "That Mr. Veritzen was in the lobby just now, and he was talking to the telephone boy."

"Thank you," I said noncommitally. "And now please get on that switchboard as soon as you can."

He hurried to the elevator, and I came back into the room, supremely thankful to find no one at the telephone.

"Katherine didn't call yet?" I queried of everybody in general, glancing furtively at Dicky to see if he were still annoyed at my conference with Purnell.

"Not so anybody could notice it," Dicky retorted. "What's the big idea of going into conference with Purnell just at this stage? Is he, by any chance, the head of a colored detective agency, and have you enlisted his aid to trap your esteemed employer?"

There was venom, though probably unconscious, in the last three words, but I ignored it with a laugh that was echoed by the Underwoods, but not by Mary. She was too frightened and miserable for even the faintest of giggles.

"I've enlisted his aid, but to spring a trap, not to set one. I didn't have time to tell you, Dicky, or I'd have asked you about it. But I was afraid 'my esteemed employer' might try to bribe the switchboard boy to relate to him any conversation we might have with Katherine or Noel. So I put Purnell on the job. He will see to it that he, and no other boy, runs the switchboard until we are through telephoning."

"Quick thinking, that," he said, "and probably the only thing you could do, although I hate the idea of your having to confide your troubles to a bellboy. I suppose at that we're having all our troubles for nothing. I can't imagine Phil Veritzen bribing a switchboard boy."

"But Purnell told me he saw him in the lobby just now talking with the boy," I said hastily.

FEW PITCHERS SUCCEED AS TUTORS

IN SIGNING OLD Chief Bender to accompany the New York National League Club to its training camp at San Antonio next spring as special coach of the Giant pitchers, Manager John McGraw promises an interesting experiment and one that will be watched closely by baseball fandom at large. Not that it is a new idea. McGraw himself brought Christy Mathewson back in that capacity in 1920; the Phillies used Jack Coombs in the same way, and in recent years Ed Walsh and Jean Dubuc performed similar duties for the White Sox and Tigers, respectively. President Barney Dreyfuss says the Pittsburgh club would have retained Babe Adams in such a role but for his part in the Carey-Bigbee trouble in 1926.

Chief Bender

Previous experiments of the kind were not successful to any marked degree. Most old pitchers have failed to shine as managers or coaches. Perhaps that's why they are no longer favored as pilots by the majority of majort league clubs. Of the 16 present skippers in the big show only Walter Johnson, of the Senators, is a former hurler. The Washington club, by the way, has a pronounced slab coloring all around, as not only Manager Johnson, but President Clark Griffith and both coaches, Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, are past mound performers.

BUT MALBE BENDER will be more successful than the average pitching coach. Certainly he is well equipped for the post. The wily Chippewa was one of the greatest flingers of his day, a master of control and slab finesse, with a vast store of knowledge as to what to do with his stuff in any situation. Connie Mack used to rate him the best pitcher in the world for one particular money game that had to be won.

Though he lifted the Johnstown club from seventh place to first in the second half of the Middle Atlantic League season of 1927, Bender did not break any records as a minor league manager elsewhere, but possibly he may do better when his duties are confined to coaching pitchers, particular as he has some college coaching experience to help him along. It will aid the Giants a lot if he can deliver, as most of McGraw's hurlers are young fellows with lots of stuff but no definite ideas as to what should be done with it. Leroy Parmalee, for instance, has a great smoke ball but lacks the control and pitching knowledge required to get results with it. It will be Bender's part to teach the Giant mound flock that there is a vast difference between pitching and mere throwing.

Evidentaly Joe Savoldi doesn't care much what becomes of him now since his college football career at Notre Dame terminated so suddenly and unfortunately, for he is said to have decided to turn wrestler.

The powerful fullback is expected to make his professional mat debut in Chicago early in the new year. As in the case of Art Shires as a boxer, the promoters figure that Joe's reputation will draw crowds whether he knows anything about wrestling or not.

Joe Savoldi

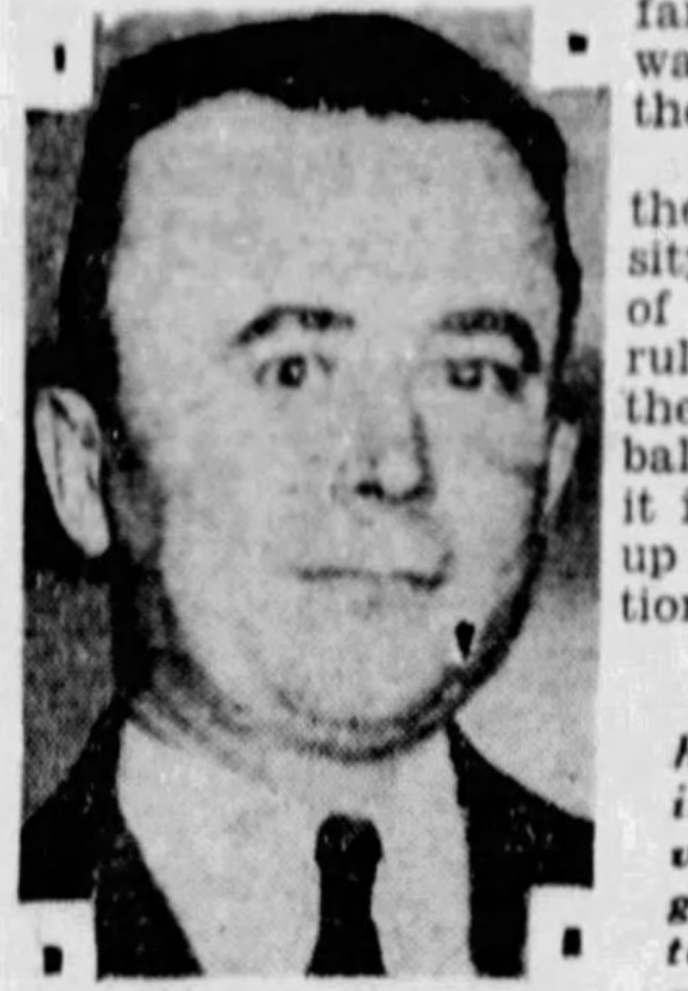
SAVOLDI WON'T BE the only former football star in the professional grappling game. Gus Sonnenberg played for Dartmouth, Don George for Michigan, Jim McMillen for Illinois and Billy Bartush for Chicago. Doc Roller shone in both football and wrestling in the old days, when he was a familiar visiting figure to Pittsburgh fans as the only gridder before Carl Dahlenbach, of Pitt, wearing a Van Dyke beard. Dex Very, of this city, former star end at Penn State, who made Walter Camp's second all-America team in 1911, and who is now one of the best officials in the country, combined with his football class such rare ability as a wrestler that he won the intercollegiate and amateur championship in his division. Very, however, never entered the professional mat ranks.

THE PRESENT WORLD championship pocket billard tournament in New York, in which Erwin Rudolph threatens to wrest the title from Ralph Greenleaf, who has won it 11 times, has revived the discussion as to the relative merits of the former playing system and style now in use.

Formerly the contestants shot until all 15 balls had been pocketed and at the beginning of each frame the player had to break from a complete pyramid. Now the fifteenth ball is left free on the table, the 14 others as racked up, and the man making the run shoots off the free ball, which gives him a chance to make that ball and on the same shot break up the 14 others.

MOST OF THE veteran stars still insist that the old system was the better and advocate a return to it, arguing that nothing has been accomplished by the change. Among them is Alfredo De Oro, most famous of the old champions. He has always opposed the present system of leaving the last ball on the table.

"There is no question in my mind that the old form of pocket billiards, the necessity of breaking the pyramid at the opening of each frame, was better than the present rule," he says. "What do you see many of the present-day players do with the free ball? As often as not they deliberately send it into a pocket for a safety shot or nudge up behind the pyramid with the same intention.



Erwin Rudolph

SO THOUGH IT appears to have helped Rudolph and a few others, nothing has been gained by the change in view of the fact that when the player is given the free-ball opportunity he elects to place his opponent in the position of making the old-fashioned break shot just as frequently as he attempts the break himself." Joe Goss, another old-timer, says a return to the former system would bring an increase in interest. "Players will become more equalized as the possibilities of long runs will be minimized," he adds, "and they will have at least one chance in each frame to do their best. Now a player must sit helpless and hopeless while watching another run off many balls. A good idea would be to have each room keeper put the matter to a popular vote, get a consensus of opinion, and then let the powers that be rule one way or the other."

HERE'S ONE THAT has escaped Mr. Ripley. There's a place where a boxing manager cannot break in. In New Zealand they will have none of him. The boxer must go it alone. He is not allowed to have a manager but must do his own business with the promoters. News of this novel fistic system is brought to this country by Col. Ed. Stewart, now visiting in Los Angeles.

Col. Stewart, a former amateur lightweight champion in his own country and a member of the Olympic Games Council, came to America in quest of professional fighters for bouts in New Zealand. He offers round-trip transportation to fighters, but there is no provision for managers. Top purses for boxers are around $1,500. Each club in each city holding shows belongs to a local association, and all the locals belong to a national governing body, the New Zealand Boxing Association. Col. Stewart says there is no friction between the fighters and promoters and adds: "We don't have fake fights in our country because there are no conniving managers."

THE OPINION OF football fans in the Pittsburgh district that Howard Eyth, Carnegie Tech star, deserves to be ranked among the greatest halfbacks in the country, receives confirmation from an authoritative source in the action of the Notre Dame players, coaches and

FORT ERIE, Ontario, Dec. 17.—The Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets were defeated by the Buffalo Herd, 3-1, in their International League hockey game here last night. Stars were cooling their heels in the penalty box when three of the four goals were made.

Lloyd Grose tallied for Buffalo with Berlet and Bouchard in the penalty box in the second period. Ronnie Martin chalked up the Herd's second goal as Mickey McGuire was serving out the fag end of a major penalty. Leo Reise came through with the Yellow Jackets' only counter when Lederman was doing time.

Sammy Godin notched the other goal. It was a splendid individual effort.

The Jackets rushed in repeatedly to even up the count in the final minutes, but Buffalo's defense was too strong and they could not penetrate. A torrid battle came to an end as Referee Bush faced off the puck in front of Cox after he had held it. The lineup:

Cox	G	Taugher
Barlett	D	Lederman
Reise	D	Jackson
Promfoot	W	Grose
Gregg	W	Cahill
Fields	C	Voss

Referee—Bush.

First period—No score. Penalty—Jackson.

Second period—Buffalo, Voss, 7:30. Penalties—Berlett, tripping; Bouchard, delaying game; McGuire, hooking; Lederman, hooking; Voss, hooking; McGuire, hooking; McGuire (major), high stick cutting; Jackson, hooking.

Third period—Buffalo, Martin (Bogardis), 2:00; Pittsburgh, Reise, 7:55; Buffalo, Godin, 12:20. Penalties—Gregg, delaying game; Lederman, tripping; Reise, Halliday, tripping; Jackson, tripping; Fields.

Negotiations for the purchase of the Niagara Falls Club, of the Canadian Pro League, under way for the last two weeks, were concluded yesterday. The Falls team is to be used as a Jacket "farm," and a few of the young performers now on the local squad probably will be sent there shortly.

DETROIT, CLEVELAND WIN

DETROIT, Dec. 17.—The Detroit Olympics handed the second-place Windsor Bulldogs a 4-1 setback in an International League hockey game here last night. The Cleveland Indians finished strong to nose out the London Tecumsehs, 3 to 1, in an overtime game in London.

PITTITES BEGIN INVASION OF WEST TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER.

Mistuh Buzz Hogan, surnamed in more gentle circles Paul, the basketball brewmaster at Carnegie Tech, is cooking up quite a tasty court concoction for the Skibos this year. Its potency will be tested by an imposing 19-game schedule, which will keep the Tartans in action from December 26 until March 9.

Buzz Hogan

The Hogan-Tech brew still is in the mash stage, but it is working fine and by the time Coach Buzz is ready to bottle it off, I'm thinking the Plaid will have something over which to cheer, and cheer and cheer.

A set of youngsters who came up from the freshmen class, Harry Seigal and Jim Fergus, the latter an agile redhead and the former a graduate of that school of basketball which operates at Fifth Avenue High School, figure to fit into the scheme of things at Tech very nicely. With veterans of the class of Capt. George Nease, Jimmy Leonard, Spike Merten, Webster, Marvin Fox and Jimmy Traa, along with other newcomers in additon to Siegal and Fergus, Coach Hogan will at least not be material poor.

Stentz and Merten are scrapping it out for the center job. The forward positions are the prizes for which Nease, Webster, Fergus, Smith and Leonard are working. Knouse, Bronson, Fox, Seigal and Traa have ambitions to be guards.

The Skibos will go to bat first the evening of December 26, meeting the Y. M. C. A. College five at Youngstown. The first regular collegiate encounter will bring the Skibos into competition with Lehigh University in the Tech gym December 29. A swing through the East, during which Hogan's hopefuls will engage American University and Georgetown in Washington, D. C.; St. John's College in Brooklyn; the Army at West Point and Temple University in Philly, and the usual home and home games with tri-state rivals, features the schedule. It is by far the most imposing lineup of battles Tech has faced in some years.

Dr. H. C. Carlson took his Panther basketeers westward via the P. R. R. late last night on the first lap of a long trip through that part of the country. The Pittites will oppose Marquette in Milwaukee tonight in the first contest of the tour.

Tomorrow they travel to Lincoln, where on Friday night they oppose Nebraska's Cornhuskers. On Saturday they play Creighton University at Omaha, after which they head homeward.

SCHOOLS HONOR GRID TEAMS

Two champion scholastic football teams, Monessen and Westinghouse, will be honored by school mates and townsfolk at ceremonies this afternoon and evening.

Westinghouse, champion of the City League, will pay tribute to its eleven at a student assembly this afternoon, when letters will be awarded and gold football presented the players on the team. Dr. H. B. Burns, director of the physical education department of the public schools, will make the principal address. The gold footballs are the gift of the school.

Tonight, beginning at 6:15, the townspeople of Monessen will honor the W. P. I. A. L. championship eleven of that town at a mammoth banquet in the Junior High School cafeteria. Monessen clinched the W. P. I. A. L. crown by defeating Redstone High School at Washington, Pa., last Saturday in a special charity-title contest.

Charles H. Williams, superintendent of the American Steel and Wire Company; Coach Jock Sutherland, of Pitt; Harry Keck, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph; Samuel Fausold, superintendent of the schools; Coach Preston Ditty; Capt. Ken Cotton; Jacob Elpern, of Greensburg, doner of the Westmoreland County trophy and Thomas Preston, toastmaster, will be the speakers.

Twenty-three members of the Monessen squad will be awarded letters.

Tomorrow night, the undefeated untied and unscored on Ambridge High School eleven, coached by Moe Rubenstein, will be honored at a Boosters' Association banquet. An array of notables has been lined up for the affair, including Ray Montgomery, assistant coach, Franklin Hood and Capt.-elect Eddie Hirshberg, of Pitt; Coach Bob Waddell, Capt. John Dreshar and John Highberger, all-Eastern tackle, of Carnegie Tech; Graduate Manager John Holohan Coach

Sport Vignettes

Heading the list of the guys hated by Bob Wood are radio announcers who describe overhand uppercuts in fights and 15-yard offside penalties in football . . . He says what this country needs is less radio misinformation on sports, and he is at the point of organizing a body of vigilantes to see that we get it . . . Knute Rockne holds that college football is not sufficiently commercialized and points out as proof the fact that two colleges had to give up the sport within the last three weeks because they couldn't make it pay . . . But what are two among so many? . . And a good running backfield might have pulled even these out of the rut.

Max Baer, the popping-offest heavyweight since they sealed up Jack Sharkey's mouth with adhesive tape, boasts he has knocked out 25 men in 27 fights and has totaled 110 knockdowns in his career, and will have Ernie Schaaf inspecting the canvas when they meet in Max's Eastern debut in Madison Square Garden, New York, Friday night . . . The youngster ought to be tipped off that you don't have the wind at your back when you're fighting on the Big Time in the East and that he'll be in a tough spot when his supply of natural gas runs out . . . Philadelphia has a new boxer named Charley Purri—and it's pronounced Pure Rye.

Being a big fish in a minor league pond is more to Pittsburgh's hockey liking than the old order of being a minnow in the ocean, which was its lot in the National League last season . . . If the Yellow Jackets don't watch out, even Carl Shatto, our demon hockey writer, shouter and statistician, will begin to take them seriously . . . Cletus (Biff) Gardner, Villanova captain and fullback, and former Carnegie High School star, was the leading scorer

Basketball Rules Quiz

PLAY NO. 15.

In a game between Yale and Harvard, the Yale captain has asked for "time out" when a player is injured and more than two minutes is consumed in attending to the injured player. Later in the same game, both captains call for "time out" at the same instant.

What are the correct rulings?

ANSWER.

In the first case, Yale is charged with two "time outs," the rules providing that a "time out" shall be charged for each two minutes or fraction thereof.

In the second case, a "time out" is charged against both teams.

HOLDOUT CROP IN NATIONAL PREDICTED

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Mr. Hoover can call it an "economic depression," Mr. Smith can counter with "hard times," the fact remains that our country at this writing shelters a galaxy of unemployed diamond stars who soon will be classed as holdouts, if they don't get a raise in pay. The new contracts are due to be sent out any day now.

Hack Wilson

You will not have to travel far from Pittsburgh to find Exhibit A. In West Virginia, down Martinsburg way, you can find a powerful little fellow who is out to get a big boost in salary from Mr. Wrigley. Fortunately for our friend, Hack Wilson, the Wrigley fortune is still so vast it cannot be estimated.

You may recall that Hack the Whacker set a new National League home-run record last season as he left Babe Ruth and the other swatsmiths in his wake. Also, you may know that he established a new major league record in the important matter of driving in runs.

CLOSE TO HORNSBY'S PAY

To come to the point, Hack, it is reported, will ask for $35,000 for next year's work. It's a nice amount, even if he doesn't get it, and Hack may actually get close to this figure. And if he is satisfied in his demand he will be second to Hornsby as the highest-price performer in the Heydler circuit. The Rajah is said to be drawing something like $40,000 per season.

So much for Hack the Whacker—what about Ol Daz? In 1929, Vance pitched for the princely sum of $25,000 and didn't "go so good." The result was a cut of 5,000 berries, with a stipulation that he would be put back to the "25-grand" class if he enjoyed a good season in the past race. Dazzy thinks he did, but there may be a hitch over the five thousand in question.

WHAT ABOUT THE WANERS?

The situation in Pittsburgh is doubtful. The Waner boys are two of the high-salaried players on the Buccaneer squad. Brother Paul is said to be drawing down more money than any member of the club. Will he seek a raise, or will he be asked to take a cut? He and Lloyd were both stubborn holdouts two years ago, the older brother not joining the club until the season was almost upon him.

Other National League holdouts may include Bill Terry and Fred Lindstrom of the Giants, both of whom experienced banner years. John McGraw recently came out with a statement classing Terry as being as good as Hal Chase. Bill led the National League in batting so that he may cash in on McGraw's own boost. But John is that way; doesn't seem to worry when a star refuses to sign a contract.

The flag-winning Cardinals are apt to have some trouble. Burleigh Grimes appears to be all fixed up, the veteran owning a document variously reported between $18,000 and $25,000. He was under a two-year contract when he took his leave from Boston, but he intimates that the Cardinals gave him a better paper to sign. Fellows like Frisch, Wilson and Gelbert may pause ere they put their names on the dotted line.

KLEIN MAY BALK

The Robins already are working on their stars with Del Bissonette and Wallie Gilbert reported in the fold this week. The two infielders are regarded as regulars for the 1931 team, an aggregation that should make a serious bid for the flag.

If the Braves encounter a holdout, the athlete may answer to the name of Berger. Bill McKechnie's fine leftfielder had a great season and it would be only natural were he to demand a big increase. The Quakers are apt to experience trouble in lining up Chuck Klein, who truly was one of baseball's greatest last season. Dan Howley shouldn't have much trouble in lining up his Redland crew.

How about adopting that 80-yard gridiron idea to speed up football games and increase the scoring? . . . The field had to be shortened for an indoor game in the Chicago Stadium the other night . . . They could make Notre Dame and Southern California and a few of those other high-powered teams still play the 100-yard game and thus even up things on a handicap basis. GIRL CHAMPIONS IN BENEFIT

By JULIUS LEVIN.

Girls' basketball will occupy the spotlight in the Greater Pittsburgh district tonight when the Goldenson Vanities, champions of the Tri-state section, meet the Fairmont Pirates, champions of the Monongahela Valley, in a benefit game on the Duquesne University floor.

The contest is being sponsored by the Fraternal Order of Police and the entire receipts will be turned over to the relief fund being raised by that organization. Several thousand tickets have sold and a capacity crowd will attend the game.

The Goldenson Vanities will be out to score their thirtieth straight victory at the expense of the West Virginians. The Vanities scored 27 straight triumphs last season and so far this year have won two games. The Blairsville Co-High girls and the Kirwin girls were the first two victims of the popular South Side team.

Fairmount, according to reports, is sending a strong team to Pittsburgh in an effort to halt the winning streak of the Vanities. Both teams include in their line-ups excellent shots and indications are that tonight's game will develop into a shooting duel.

The main attraction will be preceded by a perliminary game featuring the Red McMahans and the Sharpsburg Y. Reserves.

An attractive league schedule is in store for the fans tonight. Charleroi goes to Glassport and Fintex to Ellwood City in the County League; W. U. Hoyles plays at St. Michaels in the West Penn League; St. Casimir appears at St. James and St. Wendelin at St. Luke in the Catholic Lyceum League; Trinity Cathedral is at North Boroughs in the Wagner Institutional League; Kingsley House plays at Wilmerding Y. in the County Amateur League; Faith Chapel plays the Trinity Royals and Mt. Troy is at First Presbyterian in the Pittsburgh Church League.

NEW LEAGUE FORMED

Another addition to the Honus Wagner family of basketball leagues was announced last evening when the tri-county loop was completed. Five quints, Duquesne Republican Club, V. J. Greenes, of Swissvale; Homestead, Ambridge and Monessen already have posted forfeits and the opening game will find the Swissvalers traveling to Monessen Saturday evening to meet Dr Lebowitz's quintet.

The sixth member of the loop will be named tomorrow. Two clubs are dickering for the last berth in the league, but, owing to the floor situation being all tied up, another team may be admitted. The loop will be one of the fastest amateur circuits in the Pittsburgh district.

FINTEX VICTOR

Fintex kept its lead by defeating Glassport, 54-25, and the Lafayettes kept pace in the runner-up position by tripping Ellwood City, 43-30, in County League battles last night.

The South Side Falcons beat the Knickers, 18-14, in the West Penn League, while First Presbyterian defeated Mt. Troy Presbyterian, 32-19, in the Pittsburgh Senior Church League.

MAX ORDERED TO MEET GOB FOR TITLE

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The emperors of maul have swung the big stick and have scattered the doldrums that have settled over the heavyweight division in the past few months.

The three members of the New York State Athletic Commission accepted the challenge of Jack Sharkey for a championship battle and notified Max Schmeling in Germany that he must agree within 15 days to defend his crown against the Boston biffer.

SEND CABLE

"There is on file in this office challenge directed at you by Jack Sharkey," Chairman James A. Farley cabled Schmeling, in Berlin, on behalf of the commission. "Your six-month period in which to defend the title expired December 12. You are directed to advise within 15 days from date your acceptance of the above challenge."

Sharkey will not be forced to prove his strength once more by disposing of Young Stribling, considered by many the outstanding heavyweight.

To add another bit of life to the heavyweight situation, Jack Dempsey applied, through his secretary, for renewal of his referee's license and the request was granted.

MAX LEADS CHASE

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Max Schmeling led reporters a merry chase last night as they sought him for comment on the New York State Athletic Commission's ultimatum, ordering him to accept a challenge from Jack Sharkey within 15 days.

Schmeling first was reported at Hamburg, where his mother is sick in a nursing home, but later he was traced to Bad Saarow, a popular resort in Brandenburg. By the time newsmen had arrived there, he had left for Berlin and they gave it up as a bad job.

RECORD SEASON PLANNED AT GARDEN

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

The Motor Square Boxing Club may set a new record for the number of shows in a season during the present campaign. It reached a new high mark last winter with 22. So far, 11 already have been staged since the 1930-31 indoor season got under way and there is a chance that as many as 30 will be crowded into the schedule.

There will be no show at the Garden next Monday night, but special matinees are carded for Christmas and New Year's Day afternoons. Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, and Vince Dundee, of Baltimore, will box the Christmas windup, while Eddie Shea and Andy Martin now look like the headliners to start off the new year.

BREAK FOR AUTO SHOW

Shows also are scheduled for January 5 and 12, but the automobile show will crowd out a boxing card on January 19. The exhibit will be out of the Garden at midnight, Saturday, January 24, and, by rushing matters, it will be possible to run a fight show the following Monday night. The food show will knock out a fight date in February and there will be an interruption or two in March, but Manager John Hermon is certain the arena's record of 22 shows in a season will be passed by a comfortable margin.

Between Rounds

Perhaps as much, if not more, interest is being shown in the semi-final at the Motor Temple, Friday night, as in the main event, between Jimmy Kelly, the North Side's welterweight "killer," and Eddie Brannon. [illegible] brings together Dangerous Dan McGraw Gallagher, tall and rangy heavyweight, of the Hill End, and chunky Frank Novak, of the North Side, in a return bout. They first met several weeks ago in the same ring, with Gallagher making his debut, winning the decision. They were rematched, and Gallagher failed to show up on the day of the fight. Novak claimed he had run out. Now, however, Gallagher is back to fight him again, and the fans who were thrilled by their first meeting are looking for another great battle. [illegible] boxes [illegible] Paris and Joe [illegible] meets Frankie Portland in the other bouts on the card.

Bill Flanigan and Chip Freeman will box the eight-round main bout of a benefit show for the Red Cross at Clearfield, Pa., tomorrow night. Tiny Trinkle meets Jesse Duke in a six-rounder, and there will be three four-rounders, as follows: Billy Burns vs. Dick Barker, Vic Pierson vs. Bobby Barrett and Frankie Saunders vs. Lloyd Lender.

The following bouts have been arranged so far for the amateur boxing show to be held in the McKeesport arena tomorrow night: Dummy Joe Pie vs. Cleveland Wright, Russ Sickles vs. Georgie Flaherty, Mike Razzone vs. Al Zack, Red Visit vs. Eddie Roberts, D. Henline vs. John Bender and Tom Fairful vs. Sonny Boy Evans. Women will be admitted free to the show.

Considering the fact that Notre Dame met 10 of the nation's best teams, representing all sections of the land, and that when opposing the South Benders every man was exerting himself more than usual, as is always the case when a champion is being faced, the choosing of Eyth as an all-opponent halfback speaks volumes for Dutch's class. It is a tribute almost equivalent to an all-America award to be named above Pinckert, of Southern California (chosen on the Rockne-Warner-Jones-Alexander first team); Stecker, of Army; Kirn, of Navy; Bruder, of Northwestern; Masters and Perina, of Penn; Ross and Opasik, of Indiana, and other halfback stars that played against Notre Dame during the year. Many of the long-distance pickers of all-star teams overlooked Eyth, but Notre Dame knows.

Harry ough

HARRY HOUGH, remembered by veteran local basketball fans as the greatest player that ever dribbled up and down the hardwood courts in the old days, was recently elected freeholder of the county in which his home city, Trenton, N. J., is located. The office of freeholder in New Jersey is similar to that of a county commissioner here, and Harry is recognized as a political leader in his region. Hough has been out of basketball for 10 years or more, but in his day was the center of attention wherever he played. Even the veteran experts of the East say he was the greatest player ever to perform, and only recently he was selected by one of the game's oldest and highest authorities as the all-time forward. Hough played on the South Side almost a quarter of a century ago as a member of the famous South Side team, of the Central League, along with Jimmy Kane, Chief Muller, Allie Brown, Charley Gross, Andy Suils, John Featherstone and the late Bob Mayham and Walter (King) Brady.

Tomorrow night Duquesne University's famous basketball team of 1927 will engage the present varsity passers of Chick Davies in Bluff Gymnasium at 8 o'clock. The great basketeers of the past, Roy O'Donovan, Johnny Serbin, Sticks Monahan, Dom DeMaria, Dick Schrading and the more recently graduated Jock Rosenberg, will appear against the 1931 edition of the Red and Blue floor performers.

A preliminary game between the Duke Frosh and the Wilmerding Y. M. C. A. will begin at 7:15 o'clock. The first public basketball game by the Dukes will prove highly interesting, John D. Holahan, graduate manager of athletics, who is in charge of the game, states.

The regular scheduled games on the Duke card do not begin until New Year's night, when the Dukes meet Lehigh University in Bluff Gymnasium.

Joe Bach, Duquesne line coach will again play his old tackle berth on December 27, in Los Angeles, having been invited to the coast with the Notre Dame All-Stars team to play the Rambler graduates of this year on that date. Each played with the All-Stars against Northwestern alumni and against the New York Giants this season, and won the commendation of Rockne for maintaining his former condition and skill.

JACKETS SET STRANGE ICE RECORD

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Despite the fact that it is a member of the rear guard in the International Hockey League's close race, the local ice team already has established a record—that of ripening from a green team into a seasoned aggregation in little more than a month.

On the evening of Thursday, November 13, a squad of ambitious youngsters sporting Yellow Jacket livery introduced International loop hockey in Pittsburgh. They lost that night and Roy D. Schooley, president and manager of the local club, said that he thought more experienced talent might be required. When the Jackets lost their second game Schooley was convinced that veterans were needed, and when they dropped their third and fourth decisions in rapid succession the rushing in of replacements began.

RUSH IN MANY VETS

Since that time the Jackets have lost only two games in eight starts, and here are a few of the reasons:

Duke McCurry, former Yellow Jacket and Pirate, was signed. Cliff McBride, young defense man, was traded to Cleveland for Mickey McGuire, experienced center. Bud Fisher was released to Syracuse under option and Albie Cox, veteran goalie, was brought in from Montreal to guard the Pittsburgh nets. Gordy Fraser, former National League defense ace, was purchased from Philadelphia. Steve Yankoski, young defense man, was sent to London in exchange for Les Reise, a National League guard for many years. Eddie Bouchard, veteran forward, was purchased from the New York Americans, and Paddy Sullivan, center ice vet, was rushed in for a trial. And last but not least, Roger Smith and Tex White, former Pittsburgh mainstays, were purchased from Philadelphia.

WHOLESALE CHANGES

At the start there were no veterans on the Pittsburgh team. Today nine Jackets, or more than half the squad membership, are experienced campaigners.

Summarizing the situation, of 11 regulars only Gregg, Fields, Proudlock and Halliday have been able to hold their berths.

Schooley now is satisfied that he has an ideal mixture of youth and experience in all departments, and no further changes are contemplated.

Tommy Westwick, son of Rat Westwick, one of the greatest centers in the history of the ice sport, and Matte, young defenseman, are here from Ottawa for a trial, Schooley revealed today. The Jackets will continue to try out young players, Schooley said, but not with a view to reconstructing the team.

Prexy York's "sign-up-the-Robins" campaign was launched only a week ago, and already he has had a favorable response from six of his athletes.

The two latest additions, Jake Flowers and Paul Richards, a young catcher, were announced today. Del Bissonette, Wally Gilbert, Al Lopez and Ray Phelps are the other pastimers in line.

Girl makes second fastest flight across continent

© UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

Making a single stop at Wichita, Kansas, she landed at Roosevelt Field, Long Island, N. Y. in 13 hours 21 minutes 43 seconds flying time from Los Angeles.

This betters every transcontinental record except that of one man --Captain Hawks--and this young society girl pilot was within 54 minutes of his time. On the second lap of her trip from Wichita to New York--she beat Hawks' time by 17 seconds! The best previous record made by a woman was bettered by many hours.

On both of her record-breaking flights, Ruth Nichols used Amoco products exclusively--AMOCO-GAS (Aviation Grade), Amoco Motor Oils and Greases.

MARKET AFTER DROP RALLIES VIGOROUSLY

List Quickly Recovers 2 to 6-Point Losses; Trading Volume Heavy

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The stock market experienced the most clearly defined selling climax in weeks today and rallied vigorously.

Selling of the rails, oils and miscellaneous issues plunged the list further into new low ground during the morning, but soon after midday, a sharp rebound occurred. The list quickly recovered losses of 2 to 6 points, and several shares achieved net gains of similar extent. Trading was in large volume in the morning, but slackened after midday. Some of the commodity markets rallied in sympathy.

Most of the mid-week business statistics were viewed as mildly favorable. The steel trade reviews indicated that ingot production has held steady in the past week, after several successive weeks of declines. Some further slackening is expected with the approach of the holidays, however.

The mid-week petroleum statistics showed a small decline in gasoline stocks, although refiners increased their operations by 3 per cent. This could not be construed very favorably in view of the comment of the Lamp, official organ of Standard of New Jersey, which said that the refiners must cut their production from 7 to 8 per cent, if the troubles of 1930 are to be obviated next year. Crude petroleum showed a slight gain. Wholesale gasoline at Chicago continued to ease, with quotations at 4⅛ to 4⅜ cents, against 4¼ to 4⅝.

The report of freight car loadings for the first week of the month showed a larger than normal gain from the Thanksgiving Day week. The total was about 15½ per cent under 1929 and 20 per cent under 1928. Electric power output for the second week of the month showed a moderate gain over the first week, and while 5.3 per cent under 1929, was 1.9 over 1928, a larger gain over that more normal year than was shown in the previous week.

Call money came down to 2 per cent, after renewals at 2½, reflecting the easing of the money market by the government overdraft at the Reserve Bank. Money moved up from 2 per cent last Friday for the first time in more than two months.

BANK MERGER VOTE CALLED

Stockholders will meet next Monday to vote on the proposed merger of three Pittsburgh banks. They are the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company, the Metropolitan Savings Bank and Trust Company, and the Peoples Trust Company of Pittsburgh. Each bank is a member of the Associated Banks, of which the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company is the leading member.

The merger will bring the resources of the Peoples-Pittsburgh Bank to more than $100,000,000. In its last report, September 24, it had resources amounting to $92,437,304. The Peoples Trust Company has $6,200,940, and the Metropolitan, $2,674,133.

LONE STAR GAS DOWNTURN HALTS

Fuel Leader Makes New Low, but Meets Buying; Plate Glass Sells Off

Prices sagged again in the early trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange but most of the declines were fractional and by the end of the first hour it appeared that the selling pressure of the past few days was wearing out.

Lone Star Gas established a new low at 19⅝, but this was only ⅛ under the previous low recorded in the early November break, and was followed by a moderate advance as additional investment buying made its appearance. The other fuels were steady also.

In the industrial group, Pittsburgh Plate Glass dropped sharply to a new low at 33½, but met support and rallied later. Other issues firmed up during the afternoon when the New York market reversed itself and staged a sensational rally.

CAR LOADINGS INCREASE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Revenue freight loadings for the week ending December 6, were announced by the American Railway Association as totaling 787,173 cars.

This was an increase of 85,088 over the preceding week, when loadings were reduced by the Thanksgiving holiday, but a decrease of 146,136 below the same period a year ago.

Miscellaneous freight loadings totaled 269,805 cars, a decline of 50,805 from the same week a year ago; merchandise 223,072, decrease 24,393; coal 175,996, decrease 35,787; forest products 34,976; decrease 17,951; ore, 6,064, decrease 2,744; coke 9,524, decrease 2,923; grain and grain products 40,105, decrease 7,895 and livestock 27,631, decrease 3,638.

New York State Official Answers Quiz on Closing Of Bank of U. S.

By B. C. FORBES

JOSEPH A. BRODERICK, New York state superintendent of banks, yesterday answered very frankly and fully the pointed questions I had publicly addressed to him in connection with the closing of the Bank of United States last week.

B. C. Forbes

Neither the parties responsible for the depositing of an abnormal amount of New York City official funds and New York state funds in the suspended institution nor the management—now ex-management—of the bank have come forward with replies to the equally pointed questions addressed to them. That the bank enjoyed extraordinary political favor has not been disputed.

"Why did the State Banking Department allow such a title as 'Bank of United States' to be used over the protests of responsible New York bankers?" I first asked Mr. Broderick.

"As I was not then in charge of the department, I cannot answer that question. I do know, however, that if the institution does not reopen, I would not permit any other applicants for a bank charter to employ such a name," he replied.

"HOW LONG ago did you first receive unsatisfactory reports concerning the condition of the Bank of United States?"

"Many, many months ago. In fact, I was eager to approve a merger of the bank with another institution last fall, but on the eve of the completion of the deal the Wall Street panic broke loose. That, of course, killed the arrangement."

"How can you explain your failure to take effective action all this time—twelve months or more? If you knew that the bank was in bad shape, why permit it to go on taking money from depositors?"

"The records will show—and most bankers in the city know—that I have been the very opposite of inactive in regard to this whole matter. The easiest thing in the world for the state banking superintendent to do is to close a bank. That can be done by the stroke of a pen.

"The supreme duty of anyone filling my position is to leave no stone unturned to PREVENT the necessity for closing a bank.

"Several times deals have been arranged and once or twice practically completed for taking care of the Bank of United States. The newspapers have reported several of these instances, notably the planned merger with the Bank of Manhattan Trust Company, and, more recently, the four-bank combination which was to be headed by J. Herbert Case, chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

"Surely, the very fact that only a couple of weeks ago it was taken for granted by everybody that the Bank of United States situation was to be taken over and go into a large combination sponsored by the most influential banking interests in New York supplies adequate justification for my having kept on trying and trying to avoid closing the institution, with all the trouble and loss that the closing of a bank usually causes.

"The Bank of Manhattan and other deals which were planned furnish convincing evidence that the status of the Bank of United States was not hopeless, and that I would have fallen short of fulfilling my duties to the utmost had I arbitrarily suspended the bank while possible doors were still open for safeguarding it, all its depositors, and its stockholders."

"WHAT IS the outlook for the depositors and stockholders now?"

"On these questions I prefer not to express an opinion. Contrary to some newspaper talk, I never went on record that depositors would be paid 100 cents on the dollar. I am working night and day with a view to devising the best possible procedure to conserve the interests of the depositors. The arrangement enabling depositors to borrow up to half of their total deposits indicates that unusual consideration has been given to their plight."

STEEL ORDERS INCREASING

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say:

Further expansion of forward contracting is the significant feature of the current situation in iron and steel. While buyers are still extremely conservative in estimating their requirements in coming months and lean to the view that business activity will show gradual, rather than sharp, recovery, there is increasing evidence of their belief that the market is scraping bottom and that the next major change in the price trend will be upward.

Pig iron contracting has continued active at Chicago and New York and has shown improvement at Cleveland. The American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Corporation, which last month bought 50,000 tons of pig iron, has made additional purchases which raise its total contract commitments to 75,000 tons.

New Equipment Used To Lay Gas Lines

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

RAPID DEVELOPMENT OF the natural gas industry has been made possible by a great number of mechanical improvements in the production of pipe and in the laying of new lines. Without the perfection of new manufacturing methods and of new equipment for line construction the transmission of gas over distances, in some cases exceeding 1,000 miles, would be impossible.

The marketing of low cost electric welded and seamless pipe has been an important contributing factor to the reduction of the cost of pipe line construction. These processes have placed the manufacture of high pressure pipe with thin walls on a suitable commercial basis. This was one important forward step which has greatly stimulated the development of this country's natural gas resources.

Advances in the technique of welding pipe joints have further contributed to pipe line efficiency. They have cut down the losses from leakage to a negligible factor.

Untouched By Human Hands

FOR MANY YEARS "untouched by human hands" has been a bakery slogan but it might be applied with equal truth to the pipe lines laid by modern methods. The ancient pick and shovel have been discarded. Old and awkward methods of handling pipe have passed into the discard.

The trench, in which the pipe line is to be placed, is dug entirely by machinery. Two different types of equipment are used. One has a wheel carrying buckets which dig away the earth and drop it on to a slide which deposits it at the side of the trench. Another uses a chain carrying buckets which performs the same operation. Some of the modern ditch digging machinery travels a distance of eight feet a minute.

Pipe Handled By Machine

THE PIPE IS USUALLY transported by truck from the nearest railroad. The heavy sections are removed from the trucks by specially designed tractors which drop the pipe into the desired positions. The sections are welded together before being lowered into the trench.

After the completed line is assembled and in position, the operation is completed by other special machines. These work similar to road grading equipment. They push the earth back into the trench and then roll it.

Compressors Used

IN ORDER TO MOVE the gas over the long distances encountered on most pipe lines, compressor stations are located at suitable intervals. Where modern high pressure pipe has been installed, a degree of flexibility of pipe line capacity is possible. Increasing requirements at consuming points can be met by constructing additional compressing stations and forcing the gas through the line at a faster pace and in a more compact form.

A remarkable feature about natural gas is that it can be transported more cheaply than electrical power. This is in spite of the fact that the investment in a pipe line is larger than in a power tranmission line.

Electric generating stations have become one of the largest customers of the natural gas industry. Gas has been adopted as a fuel in generating stations in many parts of the country where the price of the fuel is low. The fact that coal burning boilers can be converted to the use of gas at a low cost has greatly stimulated the development of this market.

Connie Tells About Kitty And Jim Is Angered

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

On the eve of her marriage to handsome Jim Tracey, vivacious Connie Calvert, rich society girl, receives a letter which causes her to leave her palatial home in Connecticut on a mysterious automobile drive to New York. Jim sees her. Connie stops at a cheap restaurant on the West Side and waits for someone. The letter threatens to expose Connie. A man approaches Connie and introduces himself as Duke Garson. He tells Connie her late father was married twice and that she has a half-sister, Kitty, living in poverty among gangsters. Connie asks to meet her. When she does, Kitty tries to blackmail her. Kitty and Garson tell Connie that they want $100,000 from her. She says she will not give it. Later Connie consents. Kitty agrees to wait for the money until after the wedding. Connie tells Kitty that she wants to be a real sister to her, inviting her to go to the Calvert home. Kitty declines the invitation. Connie goes to see Jim and explain the circumstances.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI.

Flying along the deserted country road in her car to visit Jim Tracy in the dead of night, Connie was conscious of a queer, detached feeling that separated her from all her past ways of thinking. Hitherto, she had floated merely with the social tide; life had been a secure round of genteel living and pleasures, a succession of thrills that no more than touched the surface.

Now, suddenly, a new virus tingled in her soul. A scandal had come into her life, but facing it, all fear had melted away. She had found herself connected with the underworld—had discovered an undreamed of sister, an abandoned daughter of her own father.

Wonders About Jim

It was a shock, of course, but it was also a stimulant. Already she was highly wrought up because of her wedding tomorrow with Jim Tracy. Somehow, her spirit seemed loosened from its moorings of sensation. The beautiful road undulating tempted her and she sped her roadster up to 60, to 70 miles an hour, enjoying the slight tingle of danger in her breast. She thought of Duke Garson, and the memory of him excited her like a bitter, mysterious wine.

Perversely, Connie began to feel a mischievous anticipation as to the way Jim would receive this bewildering news. His sense of conventionality would be outraged—at first. Jim was so fond of security, of well-ordered behavior. She had noticed, frequently, his unconscious habit of clinging to established customs for the stability they gave to his life. Not much of a fellow himself for taking chances, he plied his trade [illegible] most insecure thoroughfare on earth—Wall Street—but even there he was safe. Other people bought the stocks and bonds from him and took all the chances.

His home life, as a bachelor, was perfectly secure. He lived in a small country house within communicating distance of New York, with his mother and his father, a retired physician, with an income from invested funds that was barely sufficient to meet the needs of a small place . . . just a well brought up young man of pleasant charm to whom nothing much had ever happened.

When she reached his house, she saw no lights were burning, but he met her down at the road. His hat was off, and his eyes had a strained look.

"If you come up to the house you might alarm the folks," he exclaimed. "Lord, Connie, do you realize that it's after 3 in the morning—and the wedding is to be at noon?"

He opened the door of her roadster and climbed in beside her.

Relates Story

"Do you mind losing your sleep?" she asked, half mockingly.

He brushed the remark aside "Will you tell me, please, what in thunder are you up to, dear?"

She felt toward him as though he were a sulky little boy in a bad temper because he had been deprived of his sleep. Never before had she seen him quite like this. Something had been churned up in her blood tonight that made her a little impatient with him. Leaning over, she touched his hair, which even at this hour was carefully brushed.

"Foor heaven's sake, Connie, can't you be serious?"

"I don't think I was ever quiet as serious as I am right now," she told him. "Jim, darling, I'm going to give you the shock of your life."

Carefully, in detail, she told him everything—first, of receiving the mysterious letter signed K. C., Kitty's initials, and of her lone, daring visit to the place on Tenth avenue. Throughout her narration he sat aghast. There were times when she thought he flinched.

"This is awful!" he said when she finished. "They're crooks!"

"If they were really crooks," she told him, "it wouldn't be important at all. In that case it would be plain blackmail and we could laugh in their faces. Unfortunately, the girl is really my sister."

"I don't believe anything of the kind. It's a frame-up. A low-down sort of girl seized your name and picture in the paper and rigs up a story to get your money out of you. How could you believe anything so preposterous?"

Jim Angered

"I knew she was telling the truth. I could FEEL it. Besides, they have plenty of actual proof."

"Nonsense—they're just after money. Well, they'll not get a cent out of us."

"It isn't the money I'm thinking about, Jim," Connie explained, patiently. "This girl is my own flesh and blood—and my own father did her a terrible injustice. It's up to me, Jim, to make good."

"You're crazy!" he retorted. "Even suppose she is actually your sister, what have you got to do with that? How much money does she demand?"

"It's not a question of what she demands—it's a question of what I'm obligated in decency to do. More, it's a question of what I WANT to do."

"Well, what do you want to do?"

"I'm going to take her in and treat her exactly like my own legitimate sister, which she is. I'm going to see that she gets an even break in everything I have. It's the only thing that is possible — and it's little enough, considering the life she has been compelled to live because my father wasn't man enough to take care of his responsibilities."

"You can't do anything like that at all, Connie!" Jim Tracy said, sharply.

"Why can't I?"

"Because I forbid it!"

"You forbid it?"

"You bet I do. Do you mean to say that you had any idea of splitting your money with this nobody?"

"You're crazy—that's all! Suppose she is your sister, you didn't bring her into this world yourself, did you? And, furthermore, as your husband, I'm not going to let you decide this according to any silly whim. I'm going to look out for your money myself."

DAILY TRUE STORY

Musical Note

Tony Ferrano couldn't remember when he first fitted in with "The Gang."

Born in an environment of gangsters, who were active with a strong organization of racketeers, it seemed quite natural for him to be in with them,

Tony wasn't the killer type. But when it came to calling on certain laundrymen and relating pleasing stories of how some laundries had truckloads of laundry that had been destroyed again and again because the big boss neglected to "come across," none could beat him. He had a persuasive tongue.

It was the same with some of the trucking concerns working from the docks. Hard men, these guys, and Tony was only a medium-sized young man, looking far more like a movie sheik than a gangster. But he'd chat with them and relate the incident of the garage fire that destroyed 36 trucks of one company the night before this company was to take away an immense cargo of goods. The goods couldn't wait—the dock room would be needed for another cargo, and a rival company did the work.

Usually it worked beautifully. The crowd liked Tony well enough, but laughed at him because he was goofy over music. He could play a violin. As Pie-faced Pete said, "He can play that fiddle—what I mean," and that was some compliment in the lingo of Pie-face Pete's crowd.

Now and then Tony's love of music interfered with his work. He'd be at some concert when he should be on the job, or he would be over at Gertie Stacey's home, playing for her.

Tony made a lot of money and he bought nice things for Gertie. Gertie knew all about Tony's "profession" and approved, after the manner of any wise moll. Tony had only to cross his finger and Gertie would have stepped out of the home and into some cozy little apartment with him.

Released by Gang

Tony was thinking seriously of this. Why not? Most of the bunch he associated with would take it for granted that Tony was a good picker and had grabbed off a swell moll.

Even when his own plan of getting the big lumber yard owners in line proved a great success, Tony failed to show up at the celebration. Seasoned lumber in great stacks represents big money. It ignites easily, from various things that could be tossed over into the yard, and so wise owners came across with big protection money.

Because this had been Tony's idea, he was to have a big share of the shake-down profits, a sort of reward of merit that went to whoever "invented" a new and successful racket.

But that night Tony was playing with the Ben Ranlin Orchestra at the White Mule night club. His friend, Joe Morino, was away on a honeymoon, and Tony got the chance to take his place.

So Tony forgot all about the little dinner and celebration and the big stack of money coming to him.

The two weeks that Tony played with the Ben Ranlin Orchestra at the White Mule were weeks of unalloyed pleasure. Music was the one thing that gave him a big kick. And Oscar Odlin, if you please, the real Oscar, owner of the famous Odlin Orchestra, happened in at the White Mule after his evening's work was over. He heard Tony play. He made inquiries and was pleased to learn that Tony was only a substitute.

Then, when he got together with the leaders of his crowd, Tony made a little speech, sitting at the table.

"I've always been on the up-and-up with you boys," Tony said, "and here's my cards—I'm quitting. Not because I'm yeller or because any other outfit offers me more, but because I got to be a musician, I got to play—I'd rather play than eat. I'd rather play than shake down Hen Ford's little car shop or Andy Mellon's aluminum works."

They had a conference over Tony.

There was no reason for putting him on the spot. He had always been on the up-and-up, never double-crossed, and if he had gone nutty over music, they decided to let him go.

Makes Good

This made Sadie sore.

"I'm leaving you flat," Sadie told Tony.

"Sorry, Kid — thought you liked music."

Tony made good with Odlin's Orchestra. That was because his heart was in it, and his soul, if he had one. He was often featured in solos. Radio fans liked him and sent him fan letters.

It was Pie-face Pete who mentioned Tony about a year after he had left the gang. Tony had quite a bank account when he quit the gang and recently he had bought a new violin.

"I been readin' where Tony went and bought him a fancy fiddle," Pete explained, "a Straddle-divers they called it; he paid nine grand for it."

"Lissen, we never put th' bee on Tony," Pete went on.

"Aw, Tony's all right."

"Yeah? He ain't one of us no more. Then why shouldn't he pay us his bit every night like the others to keep from having his instrument busted?"

Spike agreed that there was truth and logic and his idea of fairness in this.

"Lissen," Spike said, "I got a sister, good kid but snooty because of my line—get what I mean? She's so dumb she thinks a guy is no good unless he's one of them honest suckers, get me?"

"I'm gettin' at it. Fanny, my sister, knows Tony and knows him well, raves about him whenever I drop home for a bit to hand the old folks some rent money and stuff. I'll get her to tell me about Tony's new fiddle"

Fanny had kept a straight face, but she worried. Tony had never said a word, but other musicians had. Fanny knew a great many of them had to come across with a dollar or so every night; or a finnif every week, for "insurance," that is, to insure against some gangster not smashing their instrument. And so Fanny, without giving her brother away at all, told Tony she had a hunch they were going to make him come across or else get his violin smashed, and it would be a tragedy to have a ten-grand Strad made into toothpicks.

Tony went directly to Pie-face Pete.

"If you're thinking of shaking me down, forget it. I always been square with you, but I'm no sucker. Lay off me."

"Yeah? Well, you ain't with us no more—you ain't no better than anyone else on the outside. When Smitty calls, hand him a finnif, and do it every week or your fiddle gets jumped on."

"Yeah?" Tony said.

They had never seen Tony get paper-white and tremble before. They thought it was fear and laughed. They didn't suspect that it was plain fury at the thought of having his violin smashed.

One night Tony had no more than got to his rooms when his telephone sounded.

Leaves Town

"You sap," Pie-Face said, "you been forgettin' your fiddle. We got it over here at our place tonight. If you don't come over in an hour with one grand, we're gonna jump on it."

Tony suggested that they all go to a hot place, and he hung up.

Then he went to the garage, got out his car, put a suit-case and small bundle in it, drove over and got Fannie Hennessey and drove "Westward Ho."

It took him quite a while, so that he and Fannie were just crossing the ferry to Jersey when one hour and one minute elapsed.

"We can't sell th' fiddle. He could get it back. We'll jump on th' damn thing and teach him a lesson," Pie-Face said.

There was a terrific explosion that blew out the side of the ceiling, tore apart the floor and scattered fragments of seven gangsters over the surrounding landscape.

Shoppe Hinties from Auntie Bella's Notie Bookie

By Aunt Bella

("Miss Saint Nick")

So many mugs have written Aunt Bella to ast what to give their wives and sweeties for Yuletide gifties that despite a large cold on the chest and a pair of aching poppies, Aunt Bella toured the shoppes again yesterday and fought her way to the price tags. Of course I don't know what kind of women some of my readers has in mind, and I know that there are women who would just as soon get a case of gin as well as some useless thingamagig, but I am assuming that I am writing for ladies and gents who uphold the Constitution first and ask questions afterwards. So I have noted down some things that took my eye in the windows. Consulting the chart (pardon the yawn, but I was up half the night last night with a friend indeed) you will see one of the jewel cases being shown this year by some of the leading second hand specialty shoppes. There is nothing handier than a roomy antique jewel case where a body can throw her jewels when she ain't going out. Made of glass, it permits the proud owner to look at her costume jewelry and admire it properly. I have also selected a couple of fur pieces, as most dames like to put on a little dog now and then. The stuffed fur bearing eel neckpieces, I was told, is O. K. from soup to nuts, and can easily be cast aside, on the slightest provocation. The muff and chest protector are of rabbit-ermine with cats' eyes, according to the guy who grabbed me as I stood looking in the window. He tried to drag me in, but I screamed and a very handsome gentleman, seeing a lady in distress, kindly came to my rescue, and we had a very pleasant time thereafter and he is to call me up tonight, if I remember rightly. The hat, shown in the chart, doesn't look so hot unless you consider the price, which is only three smackers. I look nice in it I thought—but then that's no sign it would be O. K. for some of the women I see men taking out these days when they might just as well be spending the long winter evenings with some one who knows what it's all about and has poise when out for a good time. I have also shown in the chart, one of the new switches which do so much to conceal the thinning natural hair which has been blighted by hasty applications of blondine lotions. I for one never place no faith in hair coloring extracts and only buy them occasionally to please my friends who call me a striking blonde—although I have naturally beautiful colored hair and never put a thing on it in my life, except in fun just for a prank. Well, friends, send in the old postal cards and let Aunt Bella give you a suggestion, although goodness knows I got plenty to do without extra work which the editor keeps putting on me, as there is no one he can trust like Aunt Bella and you can do the same. Until tomorrow—down the hatch!

* * *

But in spite of all the things being said about his daily article, Mr. Coolidge has established a very worthy precedent. Personally, we think it would be fine if no colyumist had to work for a living.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS
But our policy, my dear fellow is to take the public entirely into our confidence.

Senate Courageous

Public congratulation is due the Senate for the stand it has taken upon the emergency appropriation requested by President Hoover to expedite the building of authorized public works.

The conferees of the two houses have made a grave blunder in not sustaining the correct and constitutional stand of the Senate upon this emergency measure.

In regard to this appropriation which is intended to relieve unemployment, the Senate is acting correctly and the Senate is acting constitutionally.

Certainly the Senate acted correctly when it passed promptly the $110,000,000 appropriation voted by the House for this purpose.

The Senate refused to quibble about the amount carried in the House bill. It agreed to leave for future consideration whatever increases should be authorized.

Certainly the Senate acted constitutionally when it refused to allow Mr. Hoover to distribute this huge sum as he sees fit.

By insisting that Congress shall say not only how much money shall be appropriated to expedite public works, but what public works are to be expedited, the Senate is discharging its share of the authority and responsibility given by the Constitution, to Congress to fix the sum as well as define the purpose of every appropriation of public money.

Never in time of peace has the Congress delegated to the President the extraordinary power which Mr. Hoover undemocratically requested, and the Senate has patriotically refused to give him.

Never, except in war, should such a request be granted by the Congress or ever made by the President.

If Mr. Hoover chooses to hold up this emergency appropriation for the relief of the unemployed in the hope of obtaining greater personal advantage by means of a plan more satisfactory to his vanity, then it will be Mr. Hoover and not the Senate "that is playing politics with human misery."

Timely Demands

Senator Dill Insists Upon Open Hearings and Free Debate Concerning League Court Treaties.

On behalf of every Senator opposed to tying up the United States to the League of Nations through the League Court, Senator Dill, of Washington, has served an ultimatum that is as timely as it is reasonable.

1. Full and public hearings upon the League Court treaties must be conducted by the Committee on Foreign Relations before these "complicated and obscure documents" can be reported to the Senate.
2. Ample opportunity to debate these treaties fully and freely must be given to the Senate before they can come to a vote.

This is not a threat to filibuster against these treaties. This is only a promise to dispose of them in the way that the American system of government provides.

Under the American Constitution, the representatives of the several states in the United States Senate are the treaty-making branch of our government.

The Executive is only the TREATY-NEGOTIATING branch.

Upon the Senate, therefore, devolves the grave responsibility of subjecting every treaty to the most careful examination which its Committee on Foreign Relations can make, and of giving to every treaty the most thorough debate on which the Senate is capable.

The Senate betrays the people of the states and of the United States when it concludes a treaty without giving every Senator an opportunity fully and freely to debate the treaty's every provision.

In insisting, therefore, upon full and open hearings and full and free debate upon the League Court treaties, Senator Dill is only voicing the demands of those Senators who refuse to abdicate the constitutional responsibility of the Senate as the treaty-making branch of the government.

The demands of Senator Dill are timely because they register an emphatic protest against the internationalists who, under the leadership of Mr. Hoover, are trying to stampede the Senate into ratifying the League Court without adequate examination or without adequate debate.

The demands of Senator Dill are reasonable because they register the firm resolve of every Senator for whom he speaks to uphold the American system of government under which the final control of foreign policy is given, not to the President, but to the Senate.

Never was the merit of the system of senatorial control of foreign policy more accurately appraised than James Bryce appraised it in The American Commonwealth, when he said:

"THE SYSTEM OF SENATORIAL CONTROL HAS TENDED, BY DISCOURAGING THE EXECUTIVE FROM SCHEMES WHICH MAY PROVE RESULTLESS, TO DIMINISH THE TASTE FOR FOREIGN ENTERPRISES, AND TO SAVE THE COUNTRY FROM BEING ENTANGLED WITH ALLIANCES, PROTECTORATES, RESPONSIBILITIES OF ALL SORTS BEYOND ITS OWN FRONTIERS."

Let the Senate deal with the League Court treaties in the way that Senator Dill demands and the way that the Constitution provides, and the Senate will surely save the United States from being entangled in "responsibilities of all sorts beyond its own frontiers" that lurk in every paragraph of these "complicated and obscure documents."

Pennsylvania Apples

It Is Regrettable That Home-Grown Fruit Is Not Being Sold More Extensively in the Streets.

There is one regrettable thing about the apples that are being sold in the streets by the unemployed—and that is that they seem to be almost exclusively apples from far-away states.

Yet Pennsylvania can and does produce apples just as good. Attracted by the high price paid abroad, 1,000 carloads of Pennsylvania apples of superior quality have been shipped this year to Great Britain, France, Germany, Scandinavia and Argentina.

That is more than half of the total shipments by Pennsylvania growers; yet Pittsburgh alone uses 2,000 carloads a year, of which only about one-tenth are produced in this state.

With better marketing Pennsylvania's apple production could be increased to advantage.

Golf Widows—on Clothes

"What's this? A rummage sale?" exclaimed Mrs. Divot, in astonishment, as she picked her way gingerly among the heterogenous heaps of clothes scattered about Mrs. Green's sitting room.

* * *

"Only all my old frocks from year before last," replied Mrs. Green, waving her to the one free chair. "I'm sending them out to be revamped, so that I'll have something to wear over the holidays."

"Of ALL times—to economize!" protested Mrs. Divot, much shocked.

* * *

"Year before last," mused Mrs. Divot, dreamily. "That was the big spending year, wasn't it? When the styles were so becoming and so positively TEMPTING, that every woman bought three times as many clothes as she needed. Then—came the Wall street deluge!"

* * *

"Oh, don't blame everything on the stock market!" exclaimed Mrs. Divot, impatiently. "The market is only half responsible for the slump in buying or the 'depression,' or whatever it is. The Paris style creators can be blamed for the other half.

* * *

"Why don't they WAKE up? Why don't they get wise? Women are PEOPLE, these days—and not timid geese or sheep, who can be driven hither and yon by any little Frenchman who waves a tape-measure over them."

COSMETIC CO.

* * *

"The flappers? Of course!" agreed Mrs. Green. "Youth can wear ANYTHING! But, since when have the flappers held the PURSE STRINGS? Since when have the flappers done the heavy spending?

* * *

"It's the women in the thirties and the forties, who have the fat pocketbooks, and do all the big buying. The successful business professional women, and the middle-aged wives, who MUST have the smartest clothes—and can afford to pay for them. Who do you suppose spent over twenty-two million dollars for face powders and thirty-five million for beauty creams during the last year? And over three million for hair-dyes? Not the flappers!"

* * *

"True!" agreed Mrs. Divot. "We women will have the necessities of life—even if we have to go without the luxuries—like washing machines. And, come to think of it, you don't hear the cosmetic manufacturers complaining that trade is dull!"

WAS LIFE AN ACCIDENT?

By Archibald Henderson

A casual survey of the material world, of the physical universe, may perhaps prompt the query: Was life an accident?

Surely nature herself has been no alma mater for the human race. The distances from fixed star to fixed star, from planet to island universe, are so immense as to be almost incomprehensible. The extremes of heat and snow, from sun to moon, are beyond the grasp of our imagination: we can only set down huge arrays of numerals to express them. The immense passage of time since the beginning of things has in it something of the terrifying and alien. Vast sidereal systems—nebulae, island universes, giant stars—whirl, rotate, advance about the tiny point of the human ego, the sub-atomic consciousness of man.

If nature is not actually hostile to man, surely it is entirely indifferent to our fate. The hopes and fears, struggles and ambitions, achevements and triumphs of man all occur in a universe unresponsive and recalcitrant. Nature is unmoved by the art and religion, the science and philosophy of the human race.

Is life, then, an accident, the fortuitous concatenation of blindly operating forces? Have we stumbled into life by chance, and not through the preconceived design or growing purpose of some prophetic Mind?

Huxley, it seems, once said that six monkeys, ceaselessly hammering away mechanically on typewriters for billions of years, eventually would be obliged by the operation of the laws of chance, to write all the books in the British Museum. Is the human race, life itself, one of those unforeseen accidents made possible through chance operating in an unending succession of trials?

Eddington, the British astronomer, acknowledges this as one of the possibilities. Life, after all, he suggests, may be due to a hitch in the machinery, which normally collected matter in big lumps at terrifically high temperatures. It may possibly be going too far, he avers, to say our bodies are pieces of stellar matter which by a contingency not sufficiently guarded against have taken advantage of the low temperature to assume an unusual complication and to perform a series of strange antics which we call life.

"What is the truth about ourselves? We may incline to various answers. We are a bit of star gone wrong. We are a complicated atom of physical machinery—puppets that strut, talk, laugh and die as the hand of time turns the handle beneath. But let us remember that there is one elementary and inescapable answer. We are that which asked the question."

Much the same view, apparently, is entertained by Jeans, as set forth in "The Mysterious Universe."

At first glance, at least, he says, "life seems to be an utterly unimportant by-product; we living things are somehow off the main line."

Perhaps life was an inevitable result of the gradual cooling off of the earth. Or perhaps we may argue that, since the earth was brought into being through the accidental approach of a celestial body toward the sun, life also may be a second accident, no less foreseen or pre-determined than the first. Atoms, constantly re-arranging themselves in new groupings, would inevitably, in the course of time, arrange themselves into the arrangement which appears in the human cell.

A deeper study, concludes Jeans, indicates that the universe shows evidence of a designing or controlling power that has something in common with our own individual minds—the tendency to think in the way which, for want of a better word, we describe as mathematical.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

One of the big bangs about a job like this is reading your Fan mail. Letters from those lads and lassies who make a business of knocking public people. I'm not the only one. We all get them. One day they'll take a wham at Winchell. Next day they'll pick on McIntyre or Hellinger, or maybe hurl a spitball at Helen Rowland or Winifred Black.

What do they write about? Oh—everything. Maybe you said "was" when you should have said "were." Maybe you quoted the Bible—didn't quote it. Maybe they don't agree with your views on Single Tax or the Fourth Dimension. Or are mad because you haven't any views. Whatever the reason, it's of secondary importance. The main thing is—they want to knock. Any excuse will do to hang it on.

Now of course this isn't unusual. We all enjoy a spell of knocking, now and then. But knocking isn't a now-and-then diversion for the Always Belittling Gentry. It's their serious occupation. They live for it and thrive on it. Some of them write daily to their chosen target. They keep this up for weeks, then select another victim. I have, at present, a lady contributor who has been heckling me steadily for months—daring me to answer her—enclosing special delivery stamped envelopes so I would answer.

One thing ails them all. Each and every belittler is haunted by a sense of his own failure. But of course that failure is never his fault. Life has short-changed him. He had the wrong sort of parents. Or the wrong sort of training. Or he never had a chance. And he's all burnt up about it. He longs for that importance which life has denied him.

He wants to punish those who have grabbed the spotlight which "should have been his." He hankers to show 'em how smart he is. And, according to his peculiar reasoning, the best way to show 'em how smart he is, is to show them how stupid they are.

So he heckles . . . writes sneering letters. Or vicious "for-your-own-good" advice. Complains to the editor that he'll (though frequently it's a she) stop his subscription if the writer isn't fired. And, if perchance he can arouse a comeback, his joy is complete. He's shown 'em!

Always belittling—you may not be a writer, but you, too, have met that tribe. There's one in every family—one in every office. You wonder why they're so mean. What have you done to them? You haven't done anything to them. You're just a means to an end—that's all. No matter what you do, or don't do, the always belittler will try to get your goat. For goats are what he lives on.

So don't take an always belittler seriously. They exist, as sour bugs and tarantulas and cockroaches exist, and are, I suspect, a two-legged version of the same breed. Be that as it may, there's nothing you can do about them. And why be bothered, anyway? Who are they belittling? Nobody but themselves!

Values

He who lives rightly
And does not err
Holds naught too lightly,
Holds naught too dear.

With gladness ever
He greets each day,
His joy will never Slip quite away.

No one dream folds him
In its embrace;
No one heart holds him,
No one loved face.

He still can capture
New love's romance,
For him no rapture

For him unwasted
Years wing or creep,
All joys he tasted,
None drained too deep.

Text For Today Lead me in thy truth, and teach me: for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day.—Psalms, xxv:5.

(The text for today is suggested by the Rev. Charles C. Cribbs, pastor, First Presbyterian Church, Ingram.)

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

Mrs. Genius

Her Work Is Important, Also.

You hear much today about Prof. Albert Einstein, world's greatest scientist and the father of relativity, whatever that may be.

To be a genius is difficult and important. To be the wife of a genius is also important, and perhaps MORE difficult.

FRAU EINSTEIN

The wives of most geniuses have found it so.

He is unhappy in America because there is no privacy here, and he fears that he may be "killed with kindness."

Mrs. Einstein, however, will prevent that. For she is not only his wife, but his guide, philosopher and friend, smoothing out the difficulties of daily life, and leaving him free to do his work.

"Mrs. Einstein," wrote George Sylvester Viereck after a visit to the Einstein household in Germany, "adjusts herself to her husband with a tact that is rare in the wives of great men. When he ascends to the attic, she does not cling to his coat tails. When he wishes to be alone she completely eliminates herself from his life. She spares him disharmonious contacts and protects the serenity of his mind with the devotion of a vestal virgin guarding the sacred fire. It is by no means impossible that with a less self-sacrificing mate, Einstein would not have made the discoveries which link his name with the immortals. Thus love, that moves the sun and all the stars, sustains in its lonely path the genius of Albert Einstein."

You don't have to know all about relativity to understand THAT.

Demoralization

The robbery of the Manchester Savings Bank and Trust Company yesterday, climaxing a long series of daring daylight holdups, again directs attention to the demoralization of the police force.

Mayor Kline, Director Clark, Supt. Walsh and Inspectors Faulkner and Boyd are as well aware as the public that the bandits have been "making monkeys" of the police.

They know what could and should be done to remedy conditions.

Calls to the police of outlying boroughs some time later disclosed that they had not been notified.

When the police learned Monday that part of the loot obtained in the Perry State Bank holdup Saturday had been found in a North Side rooming house, they did not keep quiet about it and lie in wait for the return of the robbers to the cache, but gave out the news in the hope of bolstering their sagging prestige.

The superintendent of police, with the approval and probably at the instigation of the mayor, is actively engaged in politics, which takes much of his time. He is Republican chairman of the First Ward.

The force has undergone during the last year several violent shakeups in which men were dismissed, appointed, promoted and demoted for political reasons—and political reasons alone.

The police have been permitted, if not expected, to ignore certain kinds of criminals, particularly the booze and numbers racketeers. When they have arrested them, the police court magistrates have generally discharged the accused or let them off with light fines, instead of holding them for the grand jury as the law requires.

The Civil Service Commission has not protected city employes who were discharged for political reasons.

All these things have an important bearing on the bank robberies and other holdups that bandits are "getting away with" in Pittsburgh almost daily.

ISN'T IT SO?

The trouble with the man who knows it all is that he is always looking for someone who will try to convince him that he doesn't.

Society is full of snobs. The man who made his money in trade is sneered at by the man who made his by marrying it.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Often it is the one who is most unkind in this way who proves to be most sensitive to uncharitable and sarcastic criticism.

When you become angry over wit or sarcasm directed at you, try to remember that you have done the same thing to someone else.

But when you find an individual or a group of associates who freely indulge in sarcasm, know what to expect and don't trust them with your secrets.
